"Perspectives on America" brought to Hanover a group of the country's renowned contributors to the fine arts. Centered around the theme, "Creativity and the Critical Response," the six-day collage of lectures, discussions, and colloquia in early November was, in the opinion of Dr. Edward Lueders, "one of the few ways we can tie in the whole curriculum with the world that is going on outside." Dr. Lueders chaired the student-faculty committee which steered the week's activities. Originally the idea of President John E. Horner, "Perspectives" provided a challenge of awareness and creativity to the campus.

It was an interesting week—a vital week—a week of being torn between going to class and listening to Hollis Summers read his own poetry—of cutting the class and being thrilled by the beauty and creativity of a person so alive that he transcended the speaker-audience barrier. For those who talked with Alfred Kazin after his colloquium, showed Dore Ashton around Madison and talked with her about Hanover, or drank coffee and discussed children's poetry with Hollis Summers in a professor's home, it was a week never to be forgotten in terms of learning and creativity and joy in living; for those who didn't, it was an inexpressible loss.

Hanover branches out . . .

England . . . cold, rainy, no central heating—but no one really cares; you don't notice the weather when you're marching in the Shakespeare Birthday Parade, or exploring London shops, or listening to a noted Shakespearean scholar. For sixteen Hanover students, the trip was a chance to see, to hear, to learn; for the trip, planned by Dr. Dorothy Bucks, included classes on Shakespeare and other Elizabethans, visits to famous British landmarks, and professional performances of four of the plays being studied.

Of course, there was also time for private discovery of not-so-famous spots that became your own. Members of the class spent free weekends in various parts of the British Isles, following their own interests. Still others toured other European countries after the official close of the five-week course. But somehow, pervading all, was the unaccountable, inexpressible magic of Stratford.

Half-timbered Old English houses . . . part of the charm of discovery

New Mexico . . . home of two spring term classes. Dr. J. S. McCrary's anthropology class did sociological field work near Abiquiu, making daily trips to villages in the surrounding area to acquaint themselves with the people and their problems. Studies were made of customs, ethnic backgrounds, and community development.

Under the leadership of Dr. Stan Totten, the geology field trip class studies rock formations and other geological conditions in the arid New Mexican earth—quite a change from fossil-collecting at Hanover.

Both classes were able to make side-trips to Santa Fe and Albuquerque. Headquarters for all Hanover students was Ghost Ranch, where they—spooked around.

Sorry, they're out of season

. . . geographically and intellectually

Object . . . to discover what goes on within

New York . . . "it's a wonderful town." The World's Fair, Broadway plays, TV studios, plush 5th Avenue shops, and of course, the subways and Automats. For the Hanover political science group studying the United Nations with Dr. Glenn Mower, there were always places to go, things to do, people to see.

But perhaps the most valuable part of the trip was not the expansive and expensive wonder of the city, but the face-to-face encounter with the U.N. itself. Each class member pursued an independent study project and gathered first-hand information from group briefing sessions and private interviews with U. N. mission members. Their work was rewarded by a keener understanding of the U.N. and by a new realization of the contributions and needs of this vital world organization.

Encounter with internationalism . . . a Secretariat member gives a briefing on the U.N. Special Fund

The joys of outdoor living . . .

The Smokies . . . wild and beautiful, even when it rains. And rain it did during most of the stay of the Hanover class in Outdoor Experiences. The group, led by Miss Helen Knierim and Miss Lois Waser, camped near Gatlinberg, Tennessee, for five days during the spring term.

The group set up their own campsite, built their own fires, planned and cooked their own meals—in short, gained practical experience in all aspects of primitive camping. The campers encountered several good-sized bears, but they suffered no casualties—except for the addition of a few gray hairs. It was hard work, but it was “good experience” . . . besides, it was fun.

“The woods are lovely, dark and deep” — but keep an eye peeled for bears

The grandeur of the untamed . . .

Mexico . . . is a place no one can capture in words; its sights, sounds, and smells must come from first-hand experience. This direct contact with a people and a country whose cultural heritage is in many ways different from our own was the main goal of Miss Emma Hill's Spanish Conversation group's trip.

The class studied at the Institute de Ciencias y Artes de Chiapas, a college prep school; they also took many side trips—including a long visit to Mexico City. But the main learning ground was the daily conversation with the Mexican family each student stayed with—here colloquialisms, accents, and rhythms of the language could be learned more effectively and more lastingly than in a classroom. The Mexican youths quickly discovered that American girls have more freedom than their Mexican counterparts. On the other hand, the Americans, finding the water indigestible, discovered a substitute—Mexican beer.

. . . and the strangeness of the crowded towns

So you don't believe in the 'no-novel,' eh?

Here at Hanover . . . the five-week term was full and for the most part, less leisurely than the heat seemed to indicate. The academic highlight of the term was the three-week stay of our 1965 Writer-in-Residence, Mr. James Norman Schmidt, who uses the accidentally-acquired pen name of James Norman. Although currently concentrating on novels—fictional and historical—Mr. Schmidt has had a great variety of writing experiences and was able to share some techniques and insights with the Writing-Speech and Advanced Writing tutorials. He also delivered several lectures, participated in a radio discussion, and met informally with students for dinner and fireside chats.

Schmidt now teaches at the Instituto de Allende in Mexico, and much of his writing centers on Mexico and the complex character of its people. However, because his interests were varied, all students could find Mr. Schmidt an easy and interesting man to talk with. Thus the presence of James Norman Schmidt and his interaction with Hanover became a valuable experience.

Beyond these walls . . .

Mitzi Henschen especially enjoyed walking down this picturesque street in Hallgate, England, on her way to school.

For eight Hanover College students, the academic year of 1964-65 was spent beyond the walls of the Hanover campus. Participating in various Junior Year Abroad programs, each has found that being a part of an international campus is a broadening and worthwhile experience both academically and culturally.

Mitzi Henschen attended the University of Hull located in Hallgate, England, and found it to be unique and typically more liberal than American college life. Studying with nearly 3000 students, Mitzi was able to enrich her studies of English literature and culture. She was able to travel extensively during the summer and to spend Christmas with relatives in Germany.

Bill Caddell dines and talks with some of the officers of Mardon Hall where he lived during the year with English students.

For Bill Caddell, the University of Exeter in England offered a new and challenging experience with the British system of education. Formal meals with formal gowns as the accepted attire proved to be his favorite activity. Living in a typical dormitory with other Exeter University students, Bill had many opportunities for conversation and friendships.

Wearing the traditional robes for a formal meal, Bill enjoys an informal discussion and a mug of beer with fellow classmates of the University of Exeter.

With a crown on her head, Susie helps her French family to celebrate the annual "Feast of the Three Kings."

Concentrating on the study of French, Susie Gastineau found the University of Aix-Marseille, France, a fascinating experience in international living. Famous for its fountains, cobblestone streets, fish markets and side-walk cafes, the town of Aix was appealing to her because of its antiquity and tradition. Attending classes with French students and more than 1000 foreign students, Susie studied French literature, civilization, culture and art.

On her way to school, Susie Gastineau passed by this typical French market—wedged in between narrow streets and old buildings—where fresh fruits and vegetables could be bought at bargain prices. By noon, the market completely disappeared.

Linda Rowe's Junior Year Abroad in Neuchatel, Switzerland, included along with the study of French, of course, an opportunity to ski and to travel. Spending Christmas vacation at a ski camp, Linda returned to complete her year of studying literature, history, psychology and art before embarking on a summer of travel in southern Europe.

The University of Munich, Germany, was for Jill Sullivan "... quite a change from the small college on the Ohio to the busy metropolis on the Isar." She found many new experiences ranging from rooming with a German girl in a modern dormitory, to helping celebrate the famed "Oktober Fest" in the fall.

Linda Rowe is ready to try again to master the art of skiing at a ski camp near St. Moritz in Switzerland.

Jill and a Bavarian man compare native dress during the "Oktober Fest."

Stanley Muniu from Kenya, Africa, and Rob Larson, last year's representative to Ghana, discuss on the Hanover campus some of the differences of tribal dress.

Finding themselves in an especially strategic location for travel in the Middle Eastern countries, Steve Lenn and Jerry Neidlinger took advantage of their year at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon. Over Christmas vacation, they went to Egypt and during semester break traveled in Syria and Jordan.

Bill Dawson chose the University of Ghana for his Junior Year Abroad and found living in Africa a particularly challenging experience. Even though Bill felt that current African political and social activity was more interesting, he discovered that the African students had plenty of time to ask him questions about U.S. racial problems, Goldwater, and U.S. foreign policy.

Bill Dawson enjoys the African sun and unique landscape with an American friend from Los Angeles.

Taking advantage of the Mediterranean shore-line near the university in Beirut, Steve Lenn and a classmate from India work on an oceanography project.

This year, under the guidance of President John E. Horner, Hanover has grown physically, financially, and intellectually. Our student body and faculty have been enlarged, Newby Hospital renovated, and New Women's Residence Hall completed. Endowment funds have increased, making possible more scholarship aid and new lab equipment, and giving tangible reality to the once-vague dream of a Hanover Campus Center. Intellectual growth has been seen in the expansion of our library, which now holds 81,000 volumes. Concerned with intellectual depth as well as breadth, President Horner sparked the idea which became Perspectives on America Week.

These are achievements which we can see and appreciate; however, only work behind the scenes by the President and his administrative staff can make these things possible. In addition to the administration of educational matters and maintenance and budget problems, the College must establish effective relationships with the public and with church, government, alumnae, and professional organizations.

To President Horner, success means not scattered achievements, but the progress of the College in all areas. He must be concerned with the long-range view wherein all aspects of college life – apparent and hidden, tangible and intangible – are brought together to form the single reality which is Hanover College.

Greetings and farewells mark a beginning

Freshmen orientation is paradoxical: organized to the point of disorganization, a time of fear and lack of confidence one minute, calmness and confidence the next, always the same, yet invariably, always different. Its components are linked by intangibles, and, indeed, the components themselves are somewhat intangible. Orientation is lines, green beanies, meal tickets, placement tests, faculty advisers, residence halls, roommates, and receptions. But it's also a feeling somewhere between homesickness and happiness, the sight of a barge on the river at night for the first time, and the answer to the question of how you managed to end up here. It's rules and their accompanying restriction; it's freedom and discovery and revelation.

Orientation begins formally with the President's address on September 7; in reality, it begins with the first letter to Hanover College requesting information about the school. It ends officially at Homecoming or Christmas with the disappearance of the beanies; in actuality, it continues until the days as a Hanover student are over.

Homecoming – coming home. (Do you remember the first time you slipped and talked about "going home" in reference to coming back to Hanover?) The Hanover student soon realizes that there are many homecomings during the year and that the one set aside for early October is perhaps not always the most meaningful to him. Meaningful or not, the weekend comes and makes itself known several weeks before its actual calendar arrival. Those preceding weeks are a series of Kleenex stuffed into chicken wire, of endless and timeless song practices, of mad dashes into Madison in search of fifteen boxes of blue crepe paper. Another search occurs – this time for black skirts and sweaters for the serenades. The day itself finally comes and brings with it unique experiences (but aren't they all) – going out at six-thirty that morning to make the final re-stuffings and running into an alum who was a vital part of your life while he was a student – discovering that a move has been made to wear suits and heels to the game – walking around campus and feeling the "collegiateness" which is usually buried under exams and papers and meetings. In the afternoon, the winners of the decorating contest are announced, and a queen is crowned – and you have the experience of seeing something you worked for and believed in win – or lose. That night – the Mardi Gras Ball – with everyone appropriately attired for a change and Queen Jennifer reigning over all. And then – it's over, and there's a paper due second hour Monday. If you're Julia Rux or Mark Bell, and you've co-chaired the whole weekend, you take two aspirin and collapse from exhaustion; if you're one of the one-thousand-some others who participated in the event, you add it to the other experiences in the year and let it take the position it merits.

This year, the traditional competition among the sororities for the coveted Sorority Sing cup was abolished in favor of a more representative program. Dad's Day is a kind of landmark in the year: it's a time of trading summer cottons for winter wool, of getting a little help with checking accounts which aren't working out as well as they were planned, of rebuilding the family relationships that had gotten somewhat strained during the summer. It's dad's day, but it's much more.

Funny what you remember about Family Day. Oh, you remember the obvious things like Lee Sycle being crowned queen, and the program in her honor in front of Parker, and the buffet lunch; but it's the little, unforgettable-yet-forgettable things that really stick with you and make it a family day. It's things like the fact that it hasn't rained on that day for how-many-years-in-a-row; it's the marvel of a really clean room for a change; it's the incredulity of realizing that there are just three more weeks to the school year.

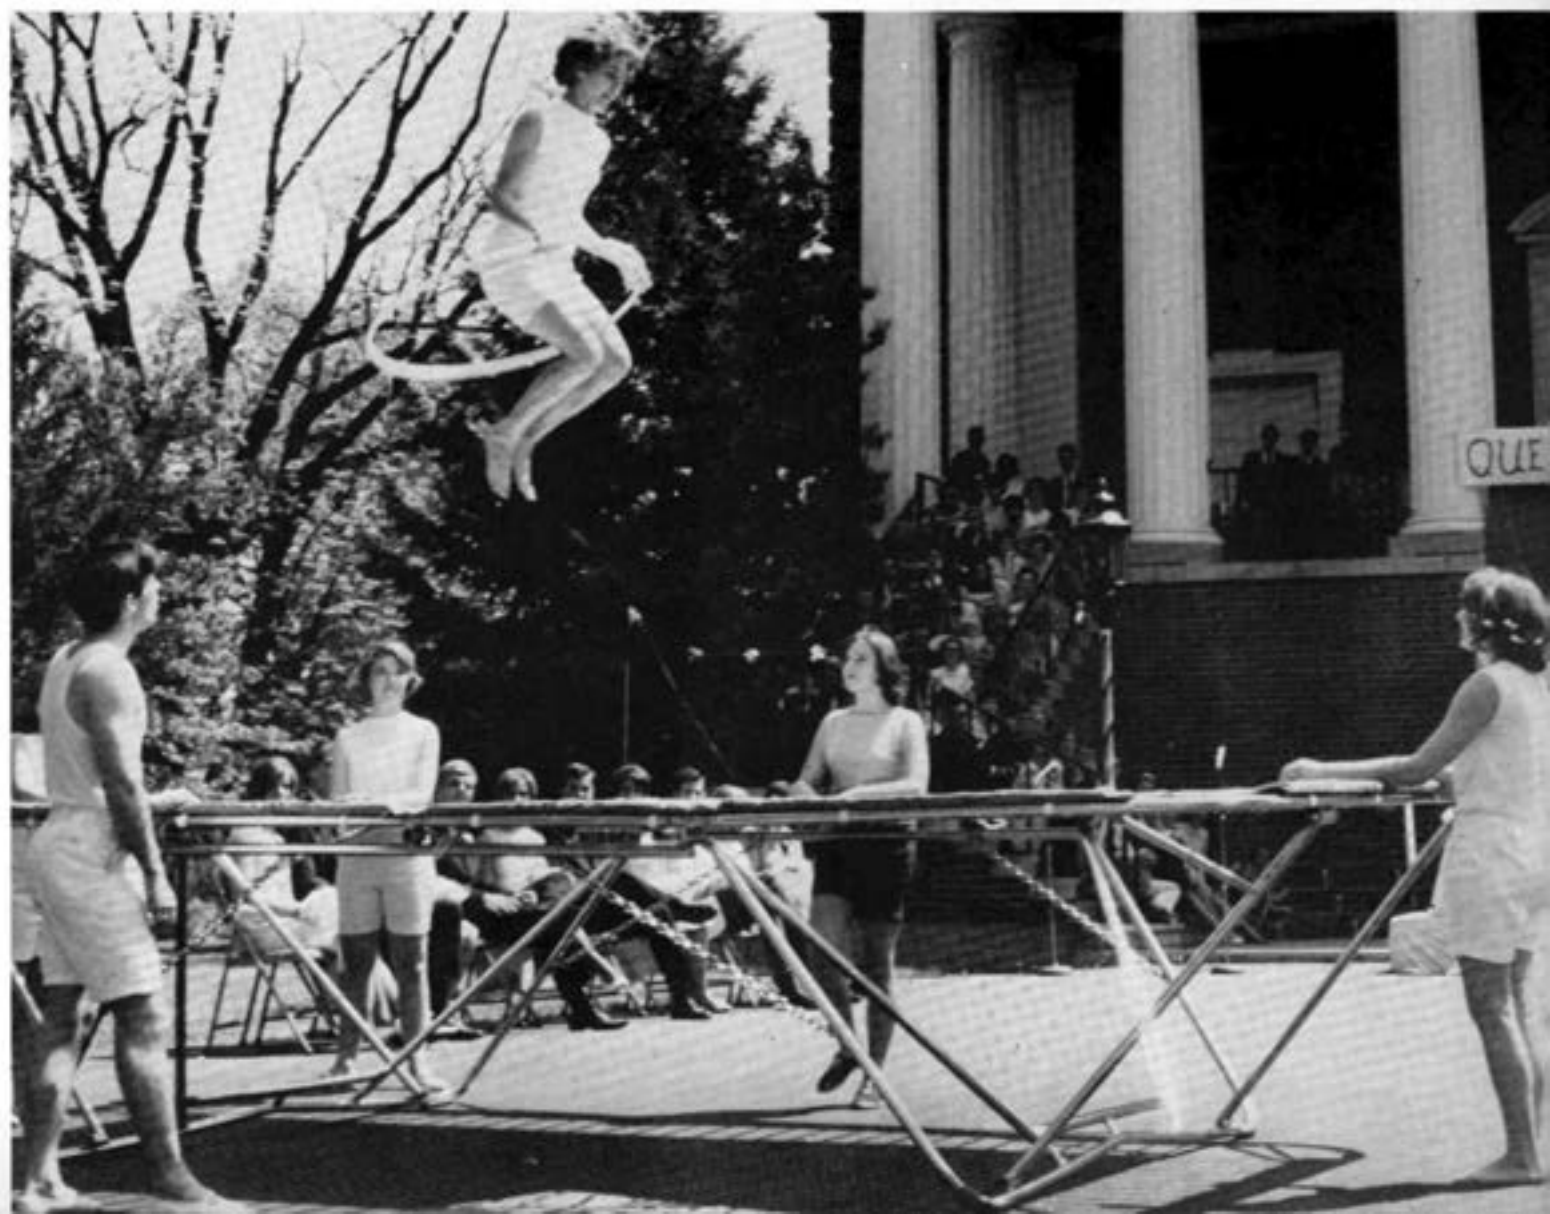

Family Day is the strange feeling of having parents at a baseball game that reminds you of your Little League days; it's the pleasure of a leisurely meal with people who talk about something besides the last chem test or the latest pinning. It's the pride in a Theatre that put on a standing-ovation performance of The Fantasticks; it's the realization that, long after you've forgotten the date (May 8), you'll remember those last, beautiful words ringing through Parker: "Try to remember, and if you remember, then follow." Family Day is that unique day when you follow and lead as you attempt to play the dual role of independent college student and still-dependent parents' child.

Faces turned skyward the morning of May 15 as students and faculty speculated as to whether rain would cancel the ninth annual Big Wheel Bike Race. Race co-chairmen Lucy Frick and Steve Bettcher breathed the proverbial sigh of relief as starting time approached and only a light sprinkling appeared, but by the time the queen candidates began their procession around the track, the sprinkling had turned into a virtual downpour. In the midst of it all—rain, mud, and umbrellas—Ronda Martin was crowned 1965 Bike Race Queen by the 1964 Queen, Diane Webb. By the time President Horner had presented Ronda with the traditional red roses, the umbrellas were down, and the teams had begun to hope that the track might actually be faster as a result of the wetting down it had received.

Phi Delta Theta, the 1964 winner, was a strong favorite,

For Hanover's Panthers, the 1964 Football season was one of great challenge. It was a building year with the majority of the team being freshmen. Only six seniors and two juniors returned from last year's squad. To head this building program the Panthers had new personnel at the top level. Wade Roby was the new head football coach while Bob Aebersold was his assistant.

Foremost on Hanover's list of challenges was the breaking of a miserable 18 game losing streak that had left the Hilltoppers winless the previous two seasons. With this in mind the young Hanover squad embarked on the new season with more enthusiasm and spirit than has been seen in the past few years.

In their first quest for victory the gridmen took their lumps at the hands of a big and experienced team from Georgetown by a score of 41 to 7.

However, the following Saturday, September 16, the rejuvenated Panthers bounced back and clawed their way to a 20 to 18 victory over Anderson College. The win snapped the loss string at 19 and gave a real boost to school spirit.

the long and hard road back

The scoreboard tells the final story as Hanover wrote an end to its 19-game loss string.

Frank Martin scores an important Panther touchdown as time runs out in the first half of the Anderson game.

The team had no place to go but up. Unfortunately, the next six games turned out to be very frustrating and also winless. Hanover's lack of experience and usual size deficit caught up with them and they ended up on the losing end each weekend. To go along with this, Lady Luck never seemed to give the nod to Hanover when it was most needed. Of the six losses three were by less than 10 points. Despite this the team spirit never faded and the overall attitude was always high.

This spirit paid off for the Panthers as they came back in the final game of the season to drub Rose Poly 42 to 0 and end the season on a note of optimism.

Despite the unimpressive 2 and 7 record, Hanover's 1964 football team was a vast improvement over the 1963 version. This can best be illustrated in a comparison of offensive and defensive statistics of the two seasons. During the 1963 campaign Hanover gave up a whopping total of 325 points while scoring only 87. During the 1964 season they upped the offensive total to 116 while drastically cutting the defensive total to 197 points.

From this improved squad the Panthers had a couple of players who were cited for their outstanding performance. Senior Mike Groh was selected to the All-Hoosier Conference team at end while senior Sam Moneyhun gained All-Conference honors at his tackle position. He also had the honor of being selected to the All-District NAIA team at tackle.

Team awards were also won by Groh and Moneyhun. Groh was selected as the team's Most Valuable Player while Sam won the Tod Kelly Award which goes to the team's outstanding lineman and also the Dutch Struck Mental Attitude Award.

For the last time Hanover saw the services of six seniors who were lost by graduation: From the top-Mike Groh, Sam Moneyhun, Bill Hopkins, Frank Martin, Ray Hale, Ned Montgomery.

For the third consecutive season Hanover's tennis team carried off the Hoosier Collegiate Conference tennis championship. In doing so the Panthers went undefeated in conference play while racking up a 5 win and 1 loss overall record.

It was a particularly satisfying season for coach Don Meek since his team was made up of all underclassmen. The team was led by junior captain Don Draper who played number one man all season and junior Jack Schnelle who did a good job holding down Hanover's number two position. For their fine efforts both were awarded positions on the HCC All-Conference team. This was the second year in a row that Draper has been selected to the All-Conference squad.

Cross Country

Hanover's cross country team finished its season with a 2 win and 7 loss record. The record, however, can be deceiving when you consider that Hanover's schedule included such high caliber schools as the University of Kentucky, Indiana State, and Bellarmine. Despite the statistics the team was stronger than the year before. Back from the previous season were Captain Bob Miller, junior Walt Baggett and sophomores Steve McGinnis and Paul Rider. The addition of three strong freshmen, Dave Crowell, John Laue, and Ken Stene, helped to bolster the team. The performance of Crowell was particularly outstanding. This slightly built freshman from Massachusetts came from far back in the pack to capture the HCC conference meet by 50 yards. The win gave Hanover its first individual winner at the conference meet in many years. The Panthers as a team, however, were only able to capture fifth place.

Looking at the 2-7 season record it might be said that Hanover is still far from a winning season. But every man on the team knows differently. This year each runner more than bettered last year's winning times. With the loss of only one senior, Bob Miller, we can expect a much improved season next year from our cindermen.

The year 1964-65 was a first as far as wrestling and the Hoosier Collegiate Conference was concerned. For the first time in its history, the HCC held a scheduled varsity wrestling program among its participating schools.

For Hanover, it was only the second year for its varsity program and the first year under the guidance of coach Wade Roby.

Hanover's wrestling team took to the mats with a young and inexperienced team. The team was made up mostly of sophomores and juniors.

Because of this inexperience, the varsity grapplers did not do too well. Much of Hanover's competition came from much larger schools with long-established wrestling programs.

Hanover's few successes were limited instead to individual performances. Jerry Poate, wrestling in the 147-pound class, won second place in the conference meet, while Larry Copeland took third place in the 123-pound class.

Copeland was undoubtedly Hanover's best wrestler. He won six matches while dropping five others. This gave him the best record of any man on the team. For his efforts he was elected most valuable wrestler and the team captain.

Others on the squad who won letters included Bob Woods, Joe Morton, Jerry Poate, Mike Brinkman, Bob Duncan, Jamie Kerchner, Pete Gordon, and Jon Bliss.

Basketball 1964-65

Hanover's basketball Panthers returned four lettermen for the 1964-65 season and chances for an improved season seemed hopeful. However, things didn't turn out that way as the usually undersized Panthers dipped to six wins and 15 losses. This was identical to their won-lost record of the 1963-64 season; it included a 2-8 Hoosier Conference record that netted them last place.

Hanover started the season on a high note by winning the City of Richmond Tourney. In capturing first place the Panthers posted a win over Marian and a double overtime victory from conference foe Manchester in the championship game. A week later, another victory over Marian left the team with a 3-0 slate, but from then on, things deteriorated rapidly. The Hilltoppers promptly lost three in a row, and 11 of their next 12 outings.

The season was not without its painful and heart-breaking experiences. Most prominent were the three home court conference losses by a grand total of six points. The losses were to the first, second, and third place teams in the conference—to Indiana Central 70-68, to Manchester 67-65, and to Anderson 76-74. Wins here would have made a vast difference in Hanover's conference finish.

The team's inability to win can largely be traced to its lack of height. Hanover's only height was in 6'6" John McDowell, who was sidelined with back trouble before the season even started. This meant that Hanover went into every game with its tallest man at 6'3" while the opponents' entire front line might average 6'4" or 6'5".

The Basketball Panthers revolved around a nucleus of Jim Holland at center, Ken Trinkle and Chuck Scott at forward, and L. J. Taylor and Jon Bruce at guard. Seniors Holland and All-Conference forward Trinkle and junior Scott provided most of Hanover's scoring punch. As a team, Hanover shot .431 from the floor and .578 from the free throw line. The Panthers averaged 72.3 points per game and scored a total of 1519 points. Hanover's foes averaged 77 points a game and totaled 1618 points. But the big category where our cagers hurt was in rebounds, where they took the short end, 853-700.

Ken Trinkle was elected the team's Most Valuable Player. He was unquestionably the team's leading individual, leading the squad in total rebounds with 184, most rebounds in a game 16, most free throws in a game, 11, highest scoring average at 17 points per game, highest season point total, 357, and best field goal average, .575. L. J. Taylor, shooting .455, and Jon Bruce with .469 took second and third places in field goal percentages. In total points, Chuck Scott with 335 and Jon Bruce with 232 took second and third, averaging 16 and 11 points respectively.

Chuck Scott, Jim Holland, Ken Trinkle, Dick Helton and Bill Sinclair set up a zone in an attempt to stop a Franklin score.

Senior Ken Trinkle lets fly with his familiar jump shot—for four years Hanover fans have enjoyed watching Kenny spearhead the Panthers with his accurate shooting.

Hanover loses only two men from its 1964-65 squad; however, the loss of Jim Holland (above) and Ken Trinkle (below) will be great. Both are four year veterans of the Panthers' basketball wars and have been amazingly consistent performers.

L. J. Taylor slides home to avoid the tag by the Marian catcher - he was safe.

The Hanover baseball team under the leadership of Coach Bob Aebersold enjoyed moderate success in the 1965 campaign. Although their over-all record was only 8 wins against 21 losses, they managed to split their ten conference games which gave them a four-way tie for second place.

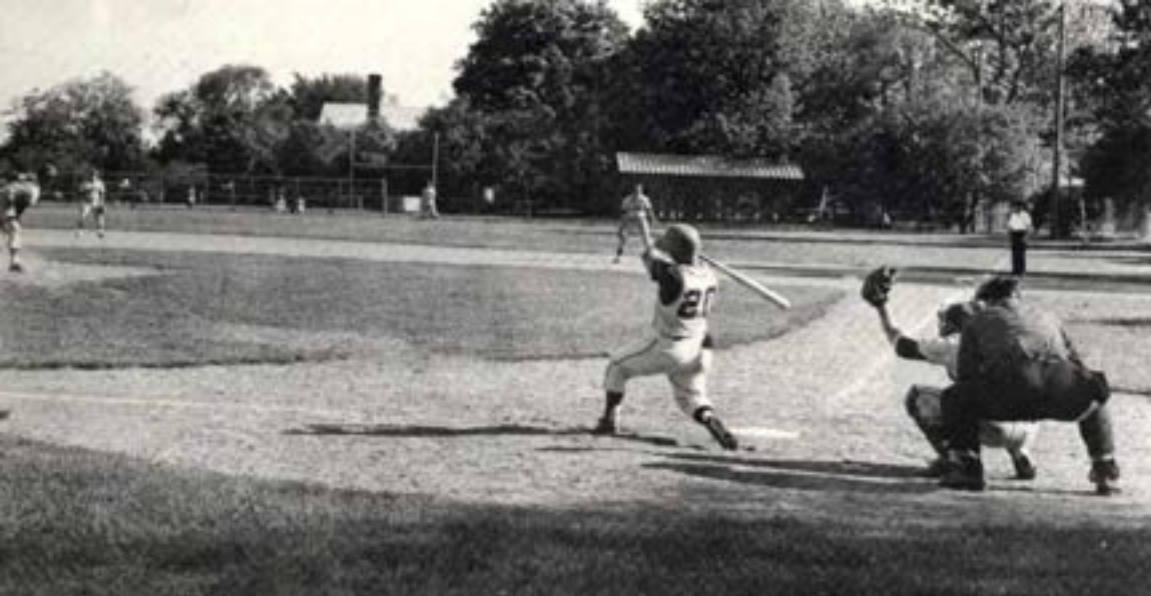

The season started slowly and it was not until the eighth and ninth games that Hanover managed to pull out a double victory by defeating Marian. In the all-important conference play, the Panthers won a double header from Franklin, lost two games to conference champion Anderson, and split their two game sets with Manchester, Taylor, and Indiana Central.

The last doubleheader of the year against Indiana Central was clearly the most exciting. To have won both games would have given Hanover second place all by itself; likewise a double loss would have given them undisputed fifth place; a split would produce a four-way tie for second place. The pressure was on as John Thompson pitched the first game and won. He did a masterful job in going the distance and allowing only 3 runs. This insured Hanover of at least a tie. However, in the second game, Hanover lost a wild extra-inning affair, 13-9. In the last inning of the regulation game, the Panthers filled the bases, but could not score the one run needed for the victory and undisputed second place.

As a team, Hanover hit .240 for the season. However, there were several individuals whose averages are worthy of mentioning. Big third baseman Kenny Young hit .377 for the year and a whopping .433 in conference play. In 28 games he knocked in 24 runs and blasted 5 homers. Other "lusty" hitters in conference play included Dave Shuchat and Bruce Siebert at .333, L. J. Taylor at .354, and Ken Trinkle at .344.

In the way of special awards, Ken Young, a senior, and sophomores L. J. Taylor and Spartaco Casini made the All-Hoosier Conference team. Young, for his excellent over-all play, was voted the team's Most Valuable Player.

Golf 1965

Hanover's golf team has again gone through another successful season. This year, the Panthers, under the coaching of George Johnson, won the HCC conference meet for the fourth year in a row; this, of course, was the highlight of a long golf campaign. The season started with a trip to Florida over spring vacation, during which the Panthers were able to tune up for the coming season.

The team's actual won-lost record was only 4-7, but included in the schedule were tough teams from Cincinnati, Eastern Kentucky, and Louisville. While winning the conference meet, the Panthers also carried home the NAIA District 21 title which was played simultaneously with the conference meet.

Individual honors were also won by Panther linksmen. Reed Silliman tied for co-medalist honors with a 152 over the 36-hole route; North Thurston placed third with a

153. For their performances, Silliman and Thurston were awarded positions on the All-Conference teams.

During the season North Thurston's play was amazingly consistent. His average for the year was 76.1 per 18 holes - low for the team. North set a possible school record when he fired a 68 to defeat the number one man from Louisville; his round was 16 pars and 2 birdies. Thurston also accounted for the most points in team matches, was team captain, and generally acknowledged as the most valuable player.

Graduating along with Thurston is Jim Nelson, who played number four man most of the season. The play of freshman Reed Silliman in tying for co-medalist is amazing, for he had been out for most of the season with appendicitis. His return along with the rest of the relatively young team should give Hanover hope for another bright season in 1966.

Track 1965

The 1965 Hanover track team had one of its most frustrating seasons—plagued by bad weather, Coach Wade Roby's cindermen got off to a slow start and did not win a meet till midseason. Also, a flock of injuries to key personnel held down Panther hopes for a better season, for these injuries came when the team was getting into winning form.

Over the season, the team won a triangular meet with Center and Oakland City and a dual meet with Bellarmine. In several other meets they scored well but were defeated. In the conference meet the Panthers finished last, gathering only 12 points. This included, however, a first place for senior Cliff Collins in the high hurdles; Cliff went on the following week to take second place in the Little State meet.

Co-captain Larry Pugh ran well through the first half of the season, but was then slowed down by an injury. Larry bettered his own school record and stadium record by running the 220-yd. dash in 21.5 seconds.

By virtue of his win in the high hurdles, Cliff Collins was selected to the All-Conference team. He scored more points than any other trackman and was voted Most Valuable Trackman by his teammates.

Other cindermen who lettered include: Jim Biltz, Ron Brogan, Ray Chenault, Wright Colbert, Dave Crowell, Vic Highbaugh, Joe Latran, Sam Moneyhun, John Pierce, Jerry Poate, Paul Rider, and Ken Stene.

Paul Rider and Dave Crowell practice in the chilly March air—sweatshirts and lots of desire are the elements needed to keep a man going at this time of year.

The Women's Recreation Association gives to Hanover women the opportunity for athletic participation. Membership in WRA is by an earned point system, but it is not necessary to be a member to enjoy the program. To accommodate all interests and all degrees of participation, WRA sets up intramural contests in softball, volleyball, basketball, bowling, and badminton. Participation in inter-collegiate matches in these sports and in field hockey and tennis is also possible.

In an attempt to further enlarge the scope of activities, WRA sponsors a September picnic for incoming freshmen and their summer correspondents. In the winter term, WRA organizes an all-school carnival with booths set up by all living units and Greek pledge classes.

Arriving in the fall to be greeted by a completely redecorated living room, Phi chapter of Alpha Delta Pi began the year with spirit. Sounds of "Charlotte Town is Burning Down", and "Blue Night" filled the house during practices for the college talent show, "Dad's Night Out", on Dad's Day in October. And the singing didn't stop there. Phi chapter is a singing chapter as the ADII serenades under the direction of songleader Nancy Ahaus proved. The AD's were also recipients of serenades for two fraternity sweethearts.

In keeping with tradition, the juniors were in charge of decorating the house for the Christmas holidays. After their work was done they gave a party. That weekend the chapter also traveled to Cragmont to carol.

Highlighting the spring term was Mother's Weekend in March. The mothers slept in the dorm and found their experience as college girls somewhat tiring. But they were pledged, initiated and serenaded. Spring was also a time to take a singing trip to Ormsby Village in Louisville, and to participate in the sorority's national philanthropic project which aids crippled children.

Established on Hanover's campus in 1950, Phi Omicron chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi shares the Jacqueminot rose and cardinal color with 78 other chapters in the United States and Canada.

AOII this year meant Activities, Others, and Pledges. Activities revealed on the 1964-65 social calendar included a Bavarian party, a hayride, the Christmas tri-level, chapter Christmas party, "Chaos in Color," the spring Rose Ball, Senior Day, and both Kentucky and Indiana State Days.

Others form an important part of the chapter too. Alpha Omicron Pi sponsors the social service branch of the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky, and locally Phi Omicron renders many services to Muscatatuck State Hospital and Training School.

Twenty-three Pledges kept the active chapter active second term with events from an AO Pizza Bake to a "Royal Flush" sewer party.

One of the most important additions to the chapter was Mrs. Fred Mullett as a chapter advisor. Although her main responsibility was as an advisor, her capabilities with pizza, fudge, cookies, breakfast rolls and general organization in all areas were warmly welcomed.

Nu chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta was the first sorority to be established on the Hanover campus in 1881, but because of the lack of women students, was dissolved in 1900. The chapter was recolonized in 1958, and is now one of 90 collegiate Theta chapters.

Nu chapter joins with other Theta chapters in supporting the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kansas. For the second year, as an international social service project, the Thetas have sponsored a Philippino foster child, Romana. At Christmastime, the Thetas carolled at Cragmont, and later in the year had a spring party for several of the wards.

As a chapter and as individuals, the Thetas were able to achieve many accomplishments. Theta captured the scholarship trophy and the Homecoming decorations trophy. Sharon Bockman was chosen Derby Day Queen, and Lee Sycle was May Day Queen.

Scholarship is also important at Rho—the chapter received the National Scholarship Award from Phi Mu.

Social functions included the traditional Dad's Day and Family Day activities, an all-sorority Strawberry Dessert, and biennial Steak and Beans dinners. The highlight of this year's activities was the formal, a dinner-dance held at Stouffer's. A fall hayride, spring picnics, teas, our 'tri-level—"Social Rhobility," "HiPhi Music" and other house dances, twenty new pledges, and the "Rho-Tau Ski Lodge"—an all school dance co-sponsored by the Fijis—all added to the year's social events.

As a group, Rho captured both the Best Backing Unit and the Pit Decorations Award in the 1965 Bike Race. As individuals, Phi Mus were also active. Marcia Ruch edited Hillthoughts; Susanne Talmage received the outstanding senior woman award, and Annette Innes was announced the outstanding senior sorority woman. Phi Delta Theta fraternity has been on Hanover's campus for 103 years. Their blue and white colors have been proudly displayed by the Indiana Epsilon chapter here.

The Phis had an active representation on campus this year. Jim Nelson was President of Student Senate. Jim also served on the Board of Student Affairs along with Jack Stiefel. The Phis had their share of class officers also, with Larry Helmer as Senior Vice-President, Ned Montgomery as Senior Treasurer, Dick Strait as Junior President, and Bob Paulus as Junior Vice-President.

The biggest excitement during the fall term was the awarding of the scholarship cup to the Phis, for their 2.8 average. On the social scene the fall saw the annual Phi Delt Formal.

The second term was filled with She-Delt Weekend, the Pledge Formal, and Miami Triad. Phi, Jim Hoyer, captured the APO Ugly Man title.

The Phis ended their most successful year by winning the Bike Race for the second consecutive year, and by taking the lead in the all intramural sports standings.

Phi Gamma Delta . . .

Phi Gamma Delta house in winter.

Tau of Phi Gamma Delta has been on Hanover's campus for over 100 years. The present house is relatively new, having been dedicated in 1956.

Life in Phi Gamma Delta is steeped in tradition. This tradition includes a number of social events which have become annual affairs. Foremost among these events are the Purple Garter Dance, the Funeral Dance, and the Fiji Island Dance.

The tradition of Tau chapter is bound up in the belief that "Brotherhood is our most important product." In the spirit of brotherhood, the Phi Gams annually go to the Madison State Hospital at Christmastime to wrap candy for the patients and they sponsor a needy family during the year. The chapter also maintains a scholarship fund for needy brothers.

The Fiji Funeral Dance is a solemn and sorrowful occasion

But one never knows when a party crasher will pop up.

Sigma Chi Derby Day came in a big way this year.

Chi Chapter of Sigma Chi was founded on May 13, 1871. There are nearly 150 active chapters on campuses in the United States and Canada. The fraternity flower is the white rose, and the fraternity colors are blue and old gold.

This year's main activities included a very successful Derby Day, first place in the annual homecoming decoration competition, and the traditional house Christmas Party. Senior Frank Martin was chosen the outstanding undergraduate Sig of Indiana and was awarded the L. G. Balfour Award for his accomplishments. Chi Chapter's sweetheart, Mary Jane Mundy, was chosen Sweetheart of the Indiana Province at the Annual State Day Banquet in Indianapolis. She also was first runner-up to the International Sweetheart of Sigma Chi.

Derby Day is usually messy, but always fun.

Independent Women . . .

The Independent Women, alias G.D.I.'s or T.G.I.'S, are not renowned for their compact unity of sisterhood. Rather the Independents, especially in the New Dorm, are known for their after hours gab sessions, bridge games, cramming sessions and their compatibility with the rest of the campus members.

In this past year the Independent Women have shown their mettle by various activities. They all enjoyed backing Jennifer for queen and were elated when she won. Apparently the amateur singing relayed their point to the guys.

Other activities have been the notorious "Beaver Hall Day" with its Fink list, a large homecoming decoration which was as wild as the wind that ripped it to shreds, the backing of the Lambda Chi's in the bike race and the queen candidate Margie. Additional hall events included fireside chats, fire drills, and panty raid pandemonium.

The life of an Independent Woman can be summed up as follows: If she isn't asleep, studying, at the library or the Point, you can find her in the Bowl.

During the last year the Independent Men have entered into Hanover College activities with increased enthusiasm and success. The campus was surprised by an Independent candidate for King Koed in the fall and a Bike Race team in the spring. Throughout the year strides were made in the realms of intramural athletics and debate.

The appearance of a new and quite different publication on the Hanover campus, namely The Oestros, was instigated by the Independents. This paper is only one indication of the interest and concern which this group exhibited toward Hanover during the year.

For the first time in many years the Independent Men set forth a united effort in many college activities. Unlike non-affiliated men in the past, this year's Independents asserted themselves in a myriad of ways. Maintaining a relatively loose organization and, at the same time, offering competition within the college, deserves special credit.

The Class of '65 . . .

Larry Helmer, Vice President; Ned Montgomery, Treasurer; Vin Couden, President.

During the Fall Term, the Senior Class brought a new program to Hanover entitled the Popular Artist Series, which featured this year the Serendipity Singers and George Shearing. The Class of '65 also provided campus entertainment with a satirical assembly skit called "That Was The Way It Was."

A semi-formal dance was held during the Spring on a large river party boat; this event was for the Junior and Senior classes and was organized by the Class of '65.

The Senior Class established a new type of class gift—a lectureship at Hanover College to be financed by an endowment fund formed from the gifts of the members of the class.

Student government— vital at Hanover

Student Senate is made up of representatives from each campus living unit. During the past year members of Student Senate have worked hard to draft a new constitution and by-laws which places much more responsibility in the hands of the students. Election procedures have been much improved. A program of talent exchange with Anderson College set the stage for what is hoped will develop into an annual affair. It is through Student Senate that all student activities and problems are discussed and co-ordinated.

Public Affairs Forum

The Public Affairs Forum attempts to stimulate campus thought and discussion in areas of local, state, national, and international affairs. The Forum brings political leaders, statesmen, and other public figures to Hanover, organizes panel discussions and debates on topics of current interest. This year the Forum arranged a mock political election and supported Hanover at the annual Little United Nations Assembly at Indiana University. It also participated in the World Affairs Conference held in Cincinnati and a television program on the United Nations at Cincinnati. The Forum operates through a six-man Steering Committee elected by the student body.

Recreation Committee

The purpose of Campus Fellowship is to help create an atmosphere of sound, intelligent Christianity at Hanover College through uniting students and faculty in a program of worship, discussion, fellowship, and community outreach.

Inter-Residence Council is made up of representatives from each women's living unit. It serves as an advisory board and as a coordinator of all women's living units. It also recommends policies and programs in the interest of all women students.

Recreation Committee serves as a scheduling board for all requested social events. It also sponsors such all-campus functions as Homecoming, Orientation, Bike Race, and a cultural series entitled "Recreation Committee Presents." It has five elected members and a faculty sponsor.

Election Year!

The nation elects Johnson . . .

Hanover gives Goldwater a slim victory

The Hanover chapters of the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats attempt to present the campus and the college community with an accurate picture of the operations of their parties on the national level. The purpose of each group is to foster a sincere interest in the ideals and goals of its national party through panel discussions, films, guest speakers, and an active participation in the recent presidential election.

In connection with the national election, the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats sponsored a public debate involving the major issues of both presidential candidates. The debate was then followed up by a mock election in which 75% of the student body flocked to the leaf-covered quad to vote for Goldwater or Johnson.

The Hanover Choir, an a capella choir consisting of approximately seventy-one members, is a more well-balanced group than most of its type. Usually there are more sopranos and altos than there are tenors and basses whereas in Hanover's choir each part composes close to one-fourth of the group. To become a member, one must audition before Mr. Morrison who is director of the group. Careful consideration is given to attitude and personality as well as the student's musical qualifications. To achieve a good quality, the choir practices four times a week.

Two-thirds of the choir sings at the Presbyterian Church in Hanover alternately with the church's chancel choir. Also at the church, on a Sunday before Christmas, the choir presents a Christmas Candlelight Service. On campus they perform at special occasions such as Dad's Day, Family Day, and Commencement. This year, during long weekend, the choir went on tour singing at such places as New Albany, Evansville, St. Louis, and Indianapolis. Also this year, they have sung at two dairy producers' conventions at French Lick and Seymour. Just before spring vacation, a special concert was given in Lynn Gym to give those at Hanover a special chance to hear the choir.

Scattered suitcases, waiting busses, a last-minute note scribbled in haste -- and Choir Tour begins.

"Let's try it again" . . . and again . . . and again.

The Chamber Singers or Madrigals is a group of eighteen choir members, ten female and eight male voices, which sings on occasions when a smaller group than the choir is called for. They usually sing a different type of song than the choir. This spring, the group sang for a Columbus women's club.

The Hanover Pep Band plays at all home football and basketball games and at some of the away games. An annual event is their special half-time performance at the Dad's Day game. The group also played at such events as the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new student center on campus and two or three times off-campus.

A group which was re-organized this year on Hanover's campus is the Concert Band. This year they gave two main performances - one at an assembly and the other at a special music program given with the choir for Perspectives on America. Also on Family Day they played the processional and a few other numbers during the program.

Phi Eta Sigma was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923. It is a national scholastic honorary for men who have attained a 3.5 accumulative average by the end of their freshman year.

Alpha Lambda Delta is a scholastic honorary for women which was founded in 1924 at the University of Illinois. In order to attain membership in the national honorary, a woman must have compiled a 3.5 accumulative average by the end of her freshman year.

Gamma Sigma Pi is a national scholastic honorary for junior and senior men and women who have compiled a 3.35 or better accumulative point average.

Mental Health Club

Probably the most well-known function of Alpha Phi Omega is the annual Uglyman Dance. Members of the group also direct traffic on weekends when many visitors will be on campus, usher at Community Artist Series Programs, and work at the old folk's home in Hanover.

Besides doing much work at Cragmont, the Mental Health group has made it possible for some films on mental health to be shown on campus this year. The group also offers suggestions to others of helpful projects which may be done at Cragmont and Muskatatuck.

Those who have shown a continuing interest in dramatics may be eligible for membership in Hanover Players. The purpose of the group is to promote an interest in dramatics on campus. For the first time this year, a Player Awards Banquet is being held at which awards ranging from "Best Actress" to "Biggest Goof-off" will be presented.

"The Hanover Forum", a program taped by the Forensics Union is heard over WORX radio weekly. The group is mainly for debate and this year placed third in the National Discussion Contest. They also taped a radio play written, directed, and presented by Hanover students, for a national contest.

The Revonah is out!—despite the Hanover Plan and the fact that over half of the staff left campus for a five-week "vacation" from the press. Cooperation, understanding, and fast work were happily enough the case. Each staff member took an active part in almost all phases of production—picture planning, copy, and layout design. Revonah production this year moved from the letterpress to the offset method. This involves an entirely different printing process—one allowing for more creativity and freedom of layout at less expense.

Hillthoughts is a literary publication providing encouragement of expression and stimulus of creativity in the areas of prose and poetry, so vital to college life in a world of changing values and growing needs.

We have tried to convey a spirit—a mood—rather than a simple historical account of 1964-65 at Hanover. And we have turned to pictures and lay-out to speak for us, when words seemed too inadequate. The emphasis, quite plainly, is on art and visual impression. Our aim has been to "capture" Hanover for you to have forever.

You might say we started the year with a clean slate—with a new publishing company, a new professional photographer, and a largely inexperienced but enthusiastic staff. We decided at the outset not to work under strict rules and specifications—to foster freedom in creativity. All in all, it has been fun, educational, and successful.

And here I am in England for five weeks—immensely enjoying the country and its culture, and even managing to study Shakespeare! It seems incredible that an editor of a college publication could remove herself from the scene at such a crucial time. I am sure not every editor could.

So my particular appreciation is to Anne Marsh, who so ably edited half the book in my absence during the busiest time of the college year. And then . . .

- to those (amounting to two-thirds of the staff, in fact!) who worked efficiently and rapidly so they could depart for five weeks, too
- to those who joined the staff in mid-April to fill empty positions during spring term
- and of course to those who served a full nine-month Revonah duty.

As the immortal bard would say—"Our revels now are ended."
