1981 REBIAN

the 1990s, the number of people with health insurance rose from 70 to 85 percent, and the number of people with private health insurance rose from 40 to 55 percent.

As a result of the 1990s reforms, the number of people with health insurance rose from 70 to 85 percent, and the number of people with private health insurance rose from 40 to 55 percent. The reforms also led to a significant increase in the number of people with health insurance who were employed by large firms. In 1990, only 15 percent of people with health insurance were employed by large firms, but by 2000, this number had risen to 35 percent. This increase was due to the fact that large firms were required to provide health insurance to their employees, and many firms chose to do so.

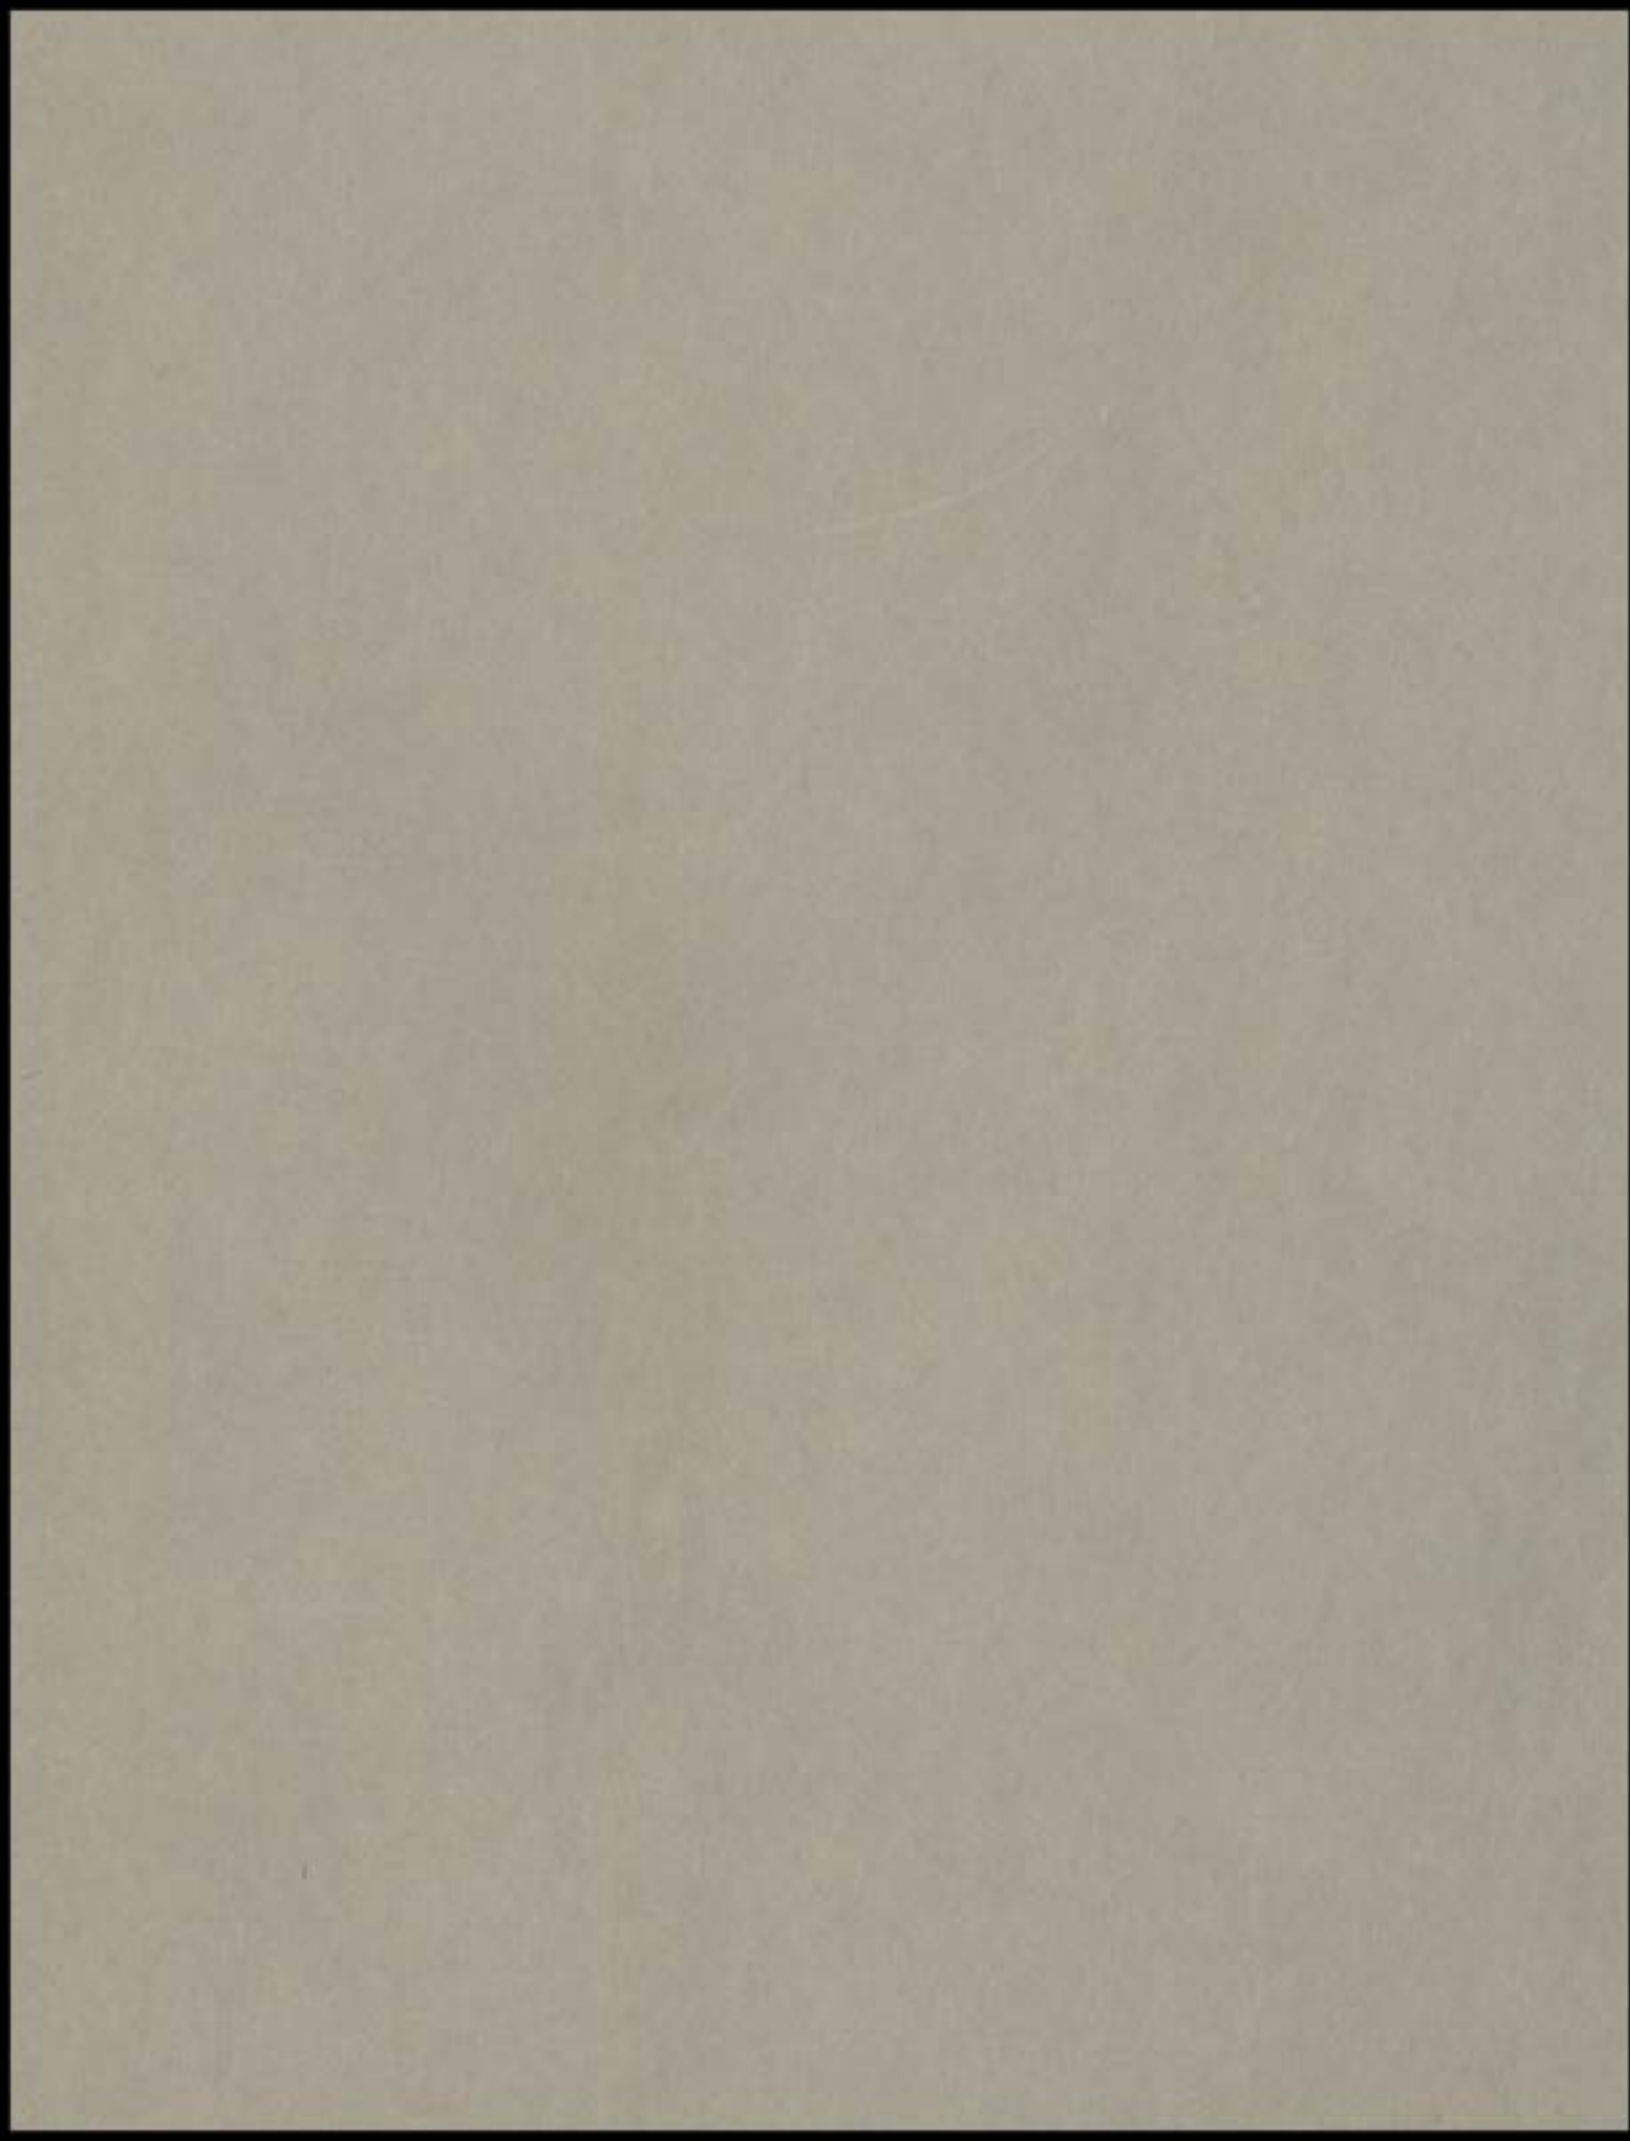

The reforms also led to a significant increase in the number of people with health insurance who were employed by small firms. In 1990, only 10 percent of people with health insurance were employed by small firms, but by 2000, this number had risen to 20 percent. This increase was due to the fact that small firms were encouraged to provide health insurance to their employees, and many small firms chose to do so. The reforms also led to a significant increase in the number of people with health insurance who were self-employed. In 1990, only 5 percent of people with health insurance were self-employed, but by 2000, this number had risen to 15 percent. This increase was due to the fact that self-employed individuals were encouraged to purchase health insurance, and many self-employed individuals chose to do so.

The reforms also led to a significant increase in the number of people with health insurance who were employed by government agencies. In 1990, only 5 percent of people with health insurance were employed by government agencies, but by 2000, this number had risen to 15 percent. This increase was due to the fact that government agencies were required to provide health insurance to their employees, and many government agencies chose to do so. The reforms also led to a significant increase in the number of people with health insurance who were employed by non-profit organizations. In 1990, only 5 percent of people with health insurance were employed by non-profit organizations, but by 2000, this number had risen to 15 percent. This increase was due to the fact that non-profit organizations were encouraged to provide health insurance to their employees, and many non-profit organizations chose to do so.

Rebel Mania

During Spirit Week the school glowed with enthusiasm and energy. The halls were decorated with everything from Kermit the frog to ancient Roman chariots. With every beat of his heart each student knew that the end of the week was getting nearer, thus the final decision from the judges of the over-all winner. Every class wanted the privilege of claiming victory, but only the class of 1982 gained it. The juniors ran away with victory, carrying the theme of Rebel Muppets.

As the week came to an end, the winner had been named; all the classes joined together again to cheer, clap, and fight for the emphatic Rebel team. Each peer recognized the competition was for fun and that his new challenge was to support our Rebels and their seven year coach, Mr. Max Perry, through another victorious year. With spirit pushing the mighty Rebels, God forgive any team who got in their way.

Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, Senior was the cry echoing through the halls as another year of spirit began. Every year to boost our team support we hold Spirit Week. This year to keep up with the pace of our successors, every class gave it their all.

Each class selected its own theme which they used in competition. This year, as well as the years past, each class battled for the thrill of winning, but three fourths had to settle for the agony of defeat.

Sports at Southwestern provided many young athletes with experience in competition and the joy of being a part of a team. Since there were a variety of sports offered, any student wishing to be a part of a team had the opportunity to do so. With the introduction of wrestling, more students became involved. As a result of the fine sports programs, there have been many well-rounded young people turned out into society to compete with life.

Rebel Rooters

The Southwestern student body is but the nucleus of the mighty Rebel atom. Our school is filled with students of immeasurable atomic potential, who bond together in the presence of any alien forces and release an invincible energy force. Our atom is not of any outstanding size, but neither is the uranium atom. In the past the Rebel force has remained unsurpassed. As for the future student bodies we say, "May the force be with you."

While having all the force of a uranium atom, the students have all of the blending harmony of peanut butter and jelly. No one can match the down home atmosphere of fun and frolic that the students have formed. All new students feel welcome and all those who leave feel loved. We, the students of Southwestern, have the mightiest of power, yet live in harmony. With all of this going for us, how can we fail?

The halls of Southwestern were always full of colorful things, whether it be the Spirit Week decorations, art class work, or a pretty face. The students and teachers alike worked together in order to make the school a more pleasant and lively place to be. Special days such as Halloween and Rebel Red, White, and Blue Day helped to add a special spectral atmosphere. Southwestern's colorful faces and halls definitely made one look forward to each day of school.

Southwestern has a very diversified faculty. We have teachers from a wide variety of colleges ranging from schools deep in the hills of Kentucky all the way to universities in Madrid, Spain. We are pleased to say approximately seventy-five percent of our faculty has earned its masters' degree in teaching. We are fortunate to have such a qualified staff.

Ask a Southwestern student for a man with principles, and he will give you Principal Delbert King. Mr. King has been at Southwestern for over twenty years—twenty years of dedication toward bettering the school system and its policies. He has bent more than one student's ear and debated with more than one teacher.

The Southwestern school system has gained the support of the community and the respect of our rival high schools. Delbert King is one of the key people, if not the person, responsible for Southwestern's respectable reputation. He has watched the high school go from an old brick building surrounded by canopies to a huddle of portables in the middle of a mud hole to a beautiful brick structure with a new gym and swimming pool.

In 1960 Delbert King watched the Hanover Bulldogs leave and the Southwestern Rebels enter. He aided and watched the Rebels help the community as the community helped them. Mr. King began his career as a principal and leader to all of us.

We would like to say thank you, Mr. Delbert King, and we love you—the backbone of the principles upon which Southwestern High School was founded.

We, the Rebian staff of 1981, have pictured, developed, and printed every influential aspect of Southwestern and our community. A group of twenty-four journalists, responsible for composing and issuing an historical record of the school year, we are proud to say this is our edition of the 1981 Rebian.

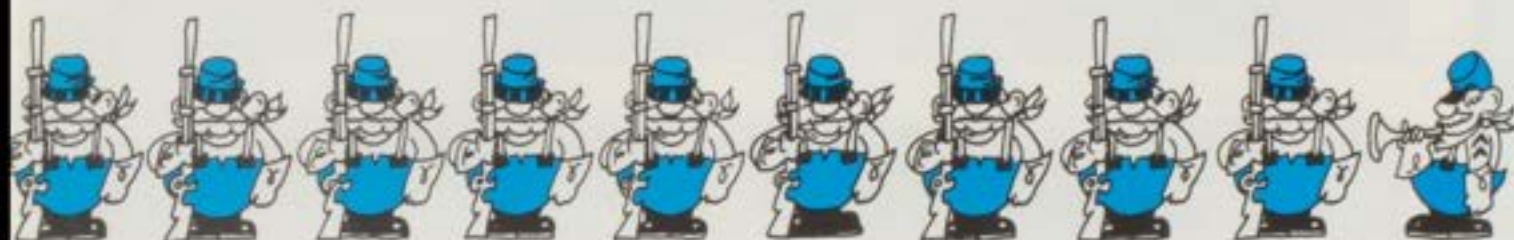

Rebel Reminiscing

As shiny as a new brass trumpet, the Southwestern Marching Rebels parade by in their contest winning form with their proud director, Mrs. Sara Springstun, at their side. With Mrs. Springstun's direction the band and colorguard have participated in enumerable exhibitions, ranging from the Hanover Founders' Day Parade to the State Band Competition in Terre Haute. The band has come of age, and now they are proud to say that nobody, but nobody, can top the mighty Marching Rebels.

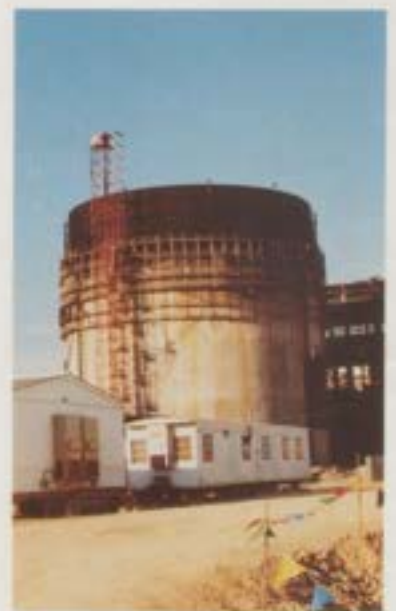

Assisting the Marching Rebels was our award-winning colorguard. The colorguard added a touch of class to our shiny band and have helped it win many trophies and awards. The guards' perfect timing, bouncing pom poms, twirling flags, and spinning rifles appeared regularly at basketball games at which they always received standing ovations. The girls should be proud of their work because as a student body we are proud of them.

Our band is by far one of the best in the state, and we will happily be the first to say it. For to say the Southwestern Marching Rebels are the best in the state is not tooting our own horn; it is merely stating the facts.

Rebel Pride

This is Southwestern High School's twenty-first year as a consolidated school in the Jefferson County School Corporation. The home of our school is Hanover, Indiana, a small midwestern town perched upon a hill over looking the scenic Ohio River Valley. The modernization of Southwestern's new building adds vigor to our town and community. We may respectfully say we have a lovely home.

A new establishment in the Southwestern school district is the Marble Hill Project, the construction of a nuclear power plant. Marble has contributed many jobs to local people and a lot of money to the school tax base. The project has raised hand and brow, but it will also raise our school's funding. We welcome the Marble Hill Project and ask only for the preservation of our community.

Rebel Power

Putt, Putt, Putt . . .

The Southwestern High School golf team, coached by Tom Patterson, completed a very successful season in 1980. Plagued by only three losses, the team ended the season with a second place finish in the Ohio River Valley Conference. The Rebels were led by seniors Joe Orr, Scott Horner, and Mitch Imel, Juniors Tony Griffith and George Orr; other members of the team were senior Dewayne Liter and sophomore Matt Morrill. At the awards banquet Tony Griffith was named captain, Mitch Imel received the most improved trophy, Scott Horner was the most scholastic, and Joe Orr was awarded the Hustle Award. All-conference honors went to Scott Horner, Tony Griffith and Joe Orr. The powerful Rebel team enjoyed a productive fall season and were competitive during the spring sectional.

"Grapplers Pin Hope On Future"

Have you ever wondered what "grappler" or "pin" meant? Well, the Southwestern High School sports fans found out when they attended the "Wrestling Rebels" matches during the 1980-81 season. Even though it was the first year for the wrestling team, they showed much potential. Knowing he had a young team, Coach Larry Moore was weighing the future of every member. Although the Rebels had a record of 3-9 the future looks much brighter for this very youthful team. Members of the youthful team consisted of seven freshmen, eight sophomores, and three juniors, all of whom will most likely be returning for an even more skilled and experienced season next year.

In the 1980-81 winter sports banquet many wrestlers were honored. All wrestlers who completed the season successfully received varsity letters. In addition, Rusty Mays, junior, received a captain's trophy, while sophomore Carlos Suarez, hustled up for his hustle trophy. Todd Bruther, a freshman won a scholastic trophy. Winning trophies for the most pins, most takedowns, and the captain's trophy was sophomore Jeff Bruther.

1980 Runners Stride On

The Rebel harriers were off and running! The 1980 cross country season, coached by Don Server and Steve Bright, started with a big change. Instead of running 2.5 miles, the state increased the distance to 5,000 meters, which is the equivalent of 3.1 miles. Southwestern's cross country program is up and coming as the team appeared in its second straight IHSAA Regional Cross Country Meet. Marvin Reece made this possible by running his best race of the year in the Sectional meet. He placed much higher in the pack than was expected, providing the Rebels with fewer points to enable them to finish third of sixteen teams. As well as being in the Regional, the Rebels kept a string, over two years, of fourteen straight wins in dual meets.

Led by sophomore Matt Morrill, who qualified for the Regional as an individual in the Sectional race, the 1980 SWHS Rebels ran to many victories. One of the victories enabled the team to run in the Regional meet. By qualifying for the Regional, Morrill was named to the All-Sectional team. Although the team fell to Madison in the Jefferson County Meet, it placed four runners on the All-County team; they were Matt Morrill-second, Greg Stoner-fifth, Greg Wyne-ninth, and Donnie Adams-tenth. SW cross country had one representative on the All-Conference team; Morrill placed fourth in that race. At the end of the season the "Hoosier Harrier" named Morrill to the Honorable Mention All-State Team.

The team Captain for 1980 was Donnie Adams, while the Varsity Hustle trophy was captured by Matt Morrill. The Most Improved Runner was Greg Stoner, and the Scholarship award was given to Ron Webb.

In junior varsity action this year, the team claimed first place in the Ohio River Valley Conference Meet. The squad was lead by sophomore Kevin Means, who was the first to cross the line for the Rebels and was the meet's individual winner. Dennis Stockdale, who won the Junior Varsity Hustle award, finished second in the race.

There will be two huge gaps to fill next year on the varsity with the loss of seniors Donnie Adams and Scott Horner. The runners to compete for those spots will be returning lettermen Matt Morrill, Marvin Reece, Greg Stoner, and Greg Wyne. With the help of upcoming freshmen, the Running Rebels should be able to produce a stronger team for the 1981 season.

This year's junior varsity volleyball team worked extremely hard under the new coaching of Mrs. Charlotte Wilhelm. The team consisted of almost all first year players. They had a great deal of dedication which paid off at the end. When the season was complete, they broke even with a record of five and five.

Dottie Surratt was the winner of the junior varsity Hustle Award.

Rebel Net Talk

The Lady Rebels' volleyball season was one of much excitement. It could clearly be said that the team had improved tremendously from last year's record of 1-14 to the 1980 record of 7-8.

The girls' volleyball team was coached by Ruth Warner, who was pleased with the team's improvement in their skill level and with how well the girls played as a team. They were tough this year, and she would have been proud to have anyone see them play. The team was a real credit to the growth and enthusiasm of volleyball in this area.

At season's end the Rebelettes had placed third in the Ohio River Valley Conference and played two games in the sectional before being eliminated.

Special honors were given to the most outstanding players of the season. Kim Sedam received Hustle and Co-Captain Awards while Angie Wyne was also honored with the Co-Captain Award. Teresa Johnson received the award for being the Most Improved player and the Scholastic Award went to Jennifer King.

Teresa Johnson, using one of the many techniques needed in serving the volleyball, attempts to score one more for the Rebels.

As the 1980-81 Rebels left the floor, the crowd stood and cheered. Had the Rebels won? No. Then what had they done? The Rebels just put on one of the most courageous performances of the sectional, and the crowd from all of the schools showed their appreciation by giving the Rebels a standing ovation. Even though they had just been beaten by Charlestown, the Rebels, coached by Max Perry, had nothing to be ashamed of. The only regret they had was the roller coaster season had just come to an end.

Crippled by injuries, Southwestern limped to a 7-14 record, not indicative of the talent possessed by the 1980-81 Rebels. A practice with nine players was not a rarity. Thanks to Bill Hensler's broken foot and Robb Lanham's ankle problems, underclassmen on the team got a taste of varsity basketball, thus giving next year's team a head start on the '81-'82 season. Greg Wyne, David Stucker, and Steve Adams, all sophomores, made great contributions during the injury plagued months. These sophomores, plus juniors Jeff Curry, Ron Webb, and Troy Todd, should make for a strong nucleus next season.

At the annual winter sports' banquet many awards were passed out and announced. All varsity players except Steve Adams received letters; Adams, who contributed greatly to the JV effort, received a certificate. Others who were recognized were: Academic All-State Honorable Mention: Donnie Adams; All Sectional Teams: John Neher, second team, Donnie Adams and Ron Webb, third team. Award winners were: Field Goal Percentage: John Neher (62 percent); Free Throw: Jeff Curry; Rebounding: John Neher; Assist Award: Donnie Adams; Hustle Award: Jeff Curry; Most Improved: John Neher; Defensive Award: Robb Lanham; Captain Award: Donnie Adams; and Scholastic Award: Bill Hensler. The Mite Federal Assist Award and the Knoebel Bird Free Throw Award were presented to Donnie Adams and Jeff Curry respectively.

DETERMINED

WITH A WILL TO

WIN

This year's Southwestern Junior Varsity Basketball Team, coached by Don Server, had the challenge to make 1980-1981 a winning season. Their determination and the will to win gave way to inexperience, the greatest factor for the team because all but one player moved up to the varsity team from last year's JV squad. Three players expected to show great leadership moved from last year's winning freshman team to the 1980-1981 varsity.

The record of eight wins and ten losses is a deceiving one. A couple of the losses came in the last minute play with SW bowing to its opponent. This year's schedule was a hard one and the junior varsity Rebels gained the experience needed to compete on the varsity level for the coming year.

The JV was composed of several experienced players from last year's freshmen squad who were moved up to this year's varsity. They were Steve Adams, David Stucker and Greg Wyne. Also seeing some action with the varsity were Greg Brawner and Mark Tolliver. New to the SW basketball program were Chris Howell from Broken Arrow, Oklahoma, and Steve Todd from Clarksville, Indiana. Carter Cloyd and Mark Lewis were brought up from this year's freshmen team to contribute to the JV effort.

Winning this year's Hustle Award was Greg Brawner, who showed the leadership, determination and hustle needed to win the award. Field goal percentage honors were shared by Kevin Means and Steve Todd with 46 percent. Leading field throw shooting was Dennis Stockdale with 68 percent. Steve Adams had 73 rebounds to lead the team on the boards while Kevin Means had 121 points and a 7.1 point average per game to guide this year's Rebel junior varsity basketball team.

No. 1

Extra! Extra! Read all about it! The Southwestern Freshman Boys' Basketball Team was something to read about this year. They made the papers a number of times on their way to becoming the 1980-1981 ORVC champs and posting a nine win and three loss season. The three losses were under the hands of Madison and Charlestown. The B-team posted a one win and three loss season to complement the A-teams' spectacular season.

The team, coached by Steve Bright, was lead by Mark Lewis who was the leading rebounder with 91 boards and 12.08 points averaged per game. Lewis also had the best field goal percentage with 53 percent. Brian Jackson had the highest free throw percentage with 67.8 percent.

The B-team was lead by Terry Weidman who had a five point average per game and Dallas Hardy who averaged four and a half points a game.

This was a great season for these maturing athletes and Southwestern is looking forward to next year to watch these aspiring young men.

Experiences With "Young"

Miss Laurie Young coached her first season of girls' varsity basketball at Southwestern High School. The team, consisting of three seniors, seven juniors, and two sophomores was an experienced one that helped Miss Young as much as she helped it. The girls emerged with an 8-9 record for the season. Considering this was Coach Young's first year, she was hoping for a developing and successful season. As the months progressed, she learned that the girls did have skill, determination, and drive. Aggressiveness on the floor was one of the qualities that she stressed the most. With this in mind, the girls had some close, heartbreaking games.

Without having the shooting power of Molly Totten, the team might not have been so successful; she averaged 15 points per game. But basketball is a team effort and Molly could not do it alone. Linda Yount contributed 9.8 points per game and her ability to control the boards with an average of 11.8 rebounds per game. Steals and assists were led by the quick and remarkable Teresa Johnson. The team would not have been complete if it were not for the strong bench. The benchwarmers provided the necessary vocal support, and when they were put in the game, their ability to help won many games.

Sectional time rolled around and the rumor was that the girls were consistent. Even though they lost their first game, they demonstrated their great drive and enthusiasm. The team faced a very strong 16-1 Austin squad. The word was out that SW would be blown out of the gym. With the buzzer's final ring, and Southwestern down by 9, the SW Girls' Varsity Basketball Team got the respect from the crowd that no one thought they would get and went home happy losers.

Something else that developed around this year's girls' varsity team was the addition of girls' varsity cheerleaders. The cheerleaders were new to this sport, but they worked tirelessly to adapt to this new experience. They showed their enthusiasm and patience when they performed in front of only a few loyal fans. The varsity team and coach appreciated their friendly smiles.

Linda Yount and Molly Totten combined for two special awards at the winter sports banquet: the all-conference ORVC team and the Rising Sun all-tourney team. Other awards handed out that night were: Hustle, Joyce Hertz, Rebounds, Linda Yount; Captain, Kim Sedam; Most Improved, Denise Wyatt; Field Goal Percentage, Molly Totten; Scholastic, Molly Totten. Two other awards were given from the community; the Mite Federal Assist Award was presented to Teresa Johnson and Knoebel Bird Free Throw Award went to Molly Totten with 67 percent. All the girls participated in enough quarters to receive their letters. This was an improved season; as for next year, the team only lost three seniors with many more returning to make a potentially successful squad.

JV Are Family

A 6-6 record doesn't tell all! This year the JV girls' basketball team showed a lot of spark. Starting off with a weak bench, but with lots of hard work during practice, the bench depth improved by the end of the season to provide relief for three part-time varsity members. Lisa Stubbins and Angie Sloan were the two most aggressive players from the bench. Showing great shooting ability were Angie Horine and Sheila Rusk. During the annual basketball banquet Rusk received the reserve Hustle award.

But the team could not work if the players did not act like one big family. Members of the JV provoked team spirit which helped each one through the hard and easy times as a distinguished ball player. Most of their support came from first year Coach Paula Carter whose dedication toward the girls provided for a good season. Her trust and knowledge of the sport of basketball proved to be unique. Through the consistence of playing during the summer and next season, the girls should be top contenders for a varsity spot.

Home Town Boys Compete

Intramurals at Southwestern are beginning to catch fire. This year's students were able to participate on a football team, a basketball team, or play tennis. Mr. Mike Havey was in charge of this wild group of men trying to dazzle each other with their great moves. Football attracted the least amount of students, but nevertheless, it was still a success. The football intramurals were played after school on the field behind the baseball diamond. In the spring there were tennis intramurals. These were played on the courts behind the school. The basketball intramurals attracted over thirty students. The Games were played in the gym on Wednesday evenings. There were three games played each night with two being played on cross courts and one on the full court.

With the finish of the season there was a tournament. The top four teams in regular season battled it out for the championship. Scott Horner, who was captain of his team, lead it to a victory in the finals. Marvin Reece and Mitch Imel carried a large bulk of the points for the team as well. The championship team received shirts for their efforts.

Cindermen Rebuild

The 1981 track season was a rebuilding year for the Rebels. Leading the team were juniors Bill Moore and Ron Webb and sophomore Matt Morrill. Moore ran in the 100, 200, and 400 relay; Webb completed in the high jump, high hurdles, and low hurdles. Morrill ran in the 800, 1600, and 3200 meter runs.

Moore, Morrill, and Webb were the only team members to qualify for the sectional. Moore ran a 23.7 in the 200 meter; Morrill ran a 10:25 in the 3200 meter; Webb leaped 5'10 in the high jump. Morrill was the only one to actually run in the sectional where he placed tenth in 10:27.7.

The Captain's Award for 1981 went to senior Scott Horner. Senior Gerald Gray received the Hustle Award. Junior Ron Webb tallied enough points to receive the Most Points Award. Webb also won the Scholarship Award. The Most Improved runner for 1981 was junior Marvin Reece. The track team will be looking to the underclassmen to provide for a stronger season in 1982.

Row four: Coach Horace Lewis and Coach Steve Bright.

Pulled Out

"Pulled out" was the way Coach Ruth Warner described this year's track season at the spring athletic banquet. The girls were only able to pull out four successful wins in seven meets. Each meet's win came down to the final race. Either the team was ahead by one point or it would be losing by one when it came time for the 1600 relay. This new relay team learned what pressure was, and they successfully handled the pressure.

The best meet of the season was with JacCenDel; even though Southwestern lost to them, the girls brought home six blue ribbons. At the conference meet the girls placed fifth behind Rising Sun, South Ripley, JacCenDel, and Switzerland County, but finished ahead of Shawe. Running in the pouring rain that day, the girls' morale was down, but their courage was high.

Because this was the first year for the 1600 relay, each school sent a team to the sectional. Our relay team consisted of Mary Hertz, Rene Madison, Joyce Hertz, and Laura Howard; the two alternates were Julie Adams and Tammy Shelton. Coming in 16th of 18 teams did not describe the hard work and effort the girls exhibited.

Three school records were broken by the Rebel girls this spring. Jessica Curtis hurled the discus 75'10". Dottie Surratt long jumped 14'9" and Tammy Shelton ran the 1600 meters in 6:04.03.

Members of the girls' track team picking up honors at the spring sports banquet included Mary Hertz, Captain's Award; Rene Madison, Hustle Award; Dottie Surratt received a trophy for Most Points; freshmen Lisa McCloud received the Scholastic Award and the Most Improved Runner was Joyce Hertz.

Stick Men

Swinging the sticks was the key to the success of the 1981 varsity Rebel baseball team. In his final year of coaching, Tom Patterson led the team to a second place finish in the conference, thus reversing the 4-6 record a year ago to 6-4 in the '81 season and a 7-10 record overall. At the annual picnic held at Hanover Park and hosted by Coach Patterson, award winners named were: Captain-Robb Lanham, RBI-John Neher, Hustle-Bill Hensler, Scholarship-Terry Taylor, Defense-Robb Lanham, Most Improved-Mitch Imel, Batting Average-Dave Stucker, and ERA-Dave Stucker.

Coach Don Server's junior varsity team sported a 3-6 record. Thanks to these find young players, the foundation for the future looks very strong. Don Brooks and Greg Stoner won the JV Hustle Award.

When someone mentioned the Varsity Cheerleading Squad, the words spirit, enthusiasm, leadership, and dedication came to mind. The school took pride in the 1980-81 varsity squad, for they were a top-notch group who had been working together for two years. It was a busy year for the squad; they decorated lockers and hoops, sold cushions and cakes, and promoted spirit throughout the school. Pep rallies were on the agenda also and the most exciting was the finale, the sectional. The cheerleaders invited all of the players' mothers and surprised them with a blindfolded "Guess your Kiss" contest. The cheerleaders had filled the air with spirit and the Rebels were victory bound, but a last second shot shattered their dreams. The season ended and four seniors, Jennifer King, Angie Wyne, Teresa Hendrickson, and Mary Ann Shelton graduated, leaving junior Rhonda Harrison to carry on the spirit of this two-year squad.

Although the crowds were small the spirit was high, for the Girls' Varsity Cheerleaders boosted the Rebel girls' pride. This newly formed squad had a large responsibility as it cheered the Rebelettes through their volleyball and basketball seasons.

While attending camp at Ball State University, the squad received a Super Star squad award. They learned many new cheers and chants that helped to continue the Rebel tradition.

Conquer The Challenge

The 1980-81 Junior Varsity Cheerleading Squad, accompanied by Pep Club, was a roaring success. Without going to camp, they came through the season with flying colors. All those snappy cheers the student body heard from those spirited girls were their own.

They received many compliments, a lot of respect, and kept Southwestern known for its pep.

The freshmen cheerleaders were unique, unique in a way that they sometimes tried to cheer during timeouts that really were not timeouts! Instead these were technical fouls. The squad started out the season with the honor of being the only freshmen squad at camp to tie a varsity squad for top honors. As the season progressed, it was evident that during the games the girls improved their skills and techniques to become an outstanding cheering squad. The freshmen girls, promoting two teams, did a fantastic job of helping to cheer the A and B squads to an ORVC championship and a 9-3 record.

This year the cheerleaders were instructed by a new sponsor, Miss Tamera Ross, who contributed much time and effort into making their squads the best.

Splish Splash!

The 1980-1981 aquatics staff kept quite busy throughout the year. Miss Ruth Warner, besides her regular swim classes, taught pre-schoolers to infants the art of swimming. Along with these activities, Miss Warner supervised open-swim on Wednesday night. Helping Miss Warner as lifeguards for open-swim were Phillip Hawk, Paul Keller, and Rusty Mays. Dana Bruther and Greg Wyne served as substitutes for absent regular guards.

Several students were involved in a very strenuous lifesaving course which was taught by Miss Warner. After long hours of work only three people received their lifesaving cards, Elaine Law, Carlos Suarez and Marlene Imel.

The swim club was very active again this year with many students participating. Miss Warner has stated that in the near future there will be a swim team.

A New Beginning FCA

This year at Southwestern a new organization was formed, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. The club was organized for growing Christian men and women who belong to athletic teams at school. FCA held monthly meetings and worked on a variety of projects. The projects could be community oriented or related to sponsoring trips and outings for the FCA itself.

In September, 1980, the first FCA meeting was held to elect officers. The students holding offices for the girls were: Kim Sedam, president; Cindy Webster, vice president; Angie Wyne, secretary; and Jennifer King, treasurer. Officers for boys' FCA were: Scott Horner, president; Matt Morrill, vice president; Greg Jones, secretary; and Robb Lanham, treasurer. Advisor for the girls was Miss Ruth Warner and for the boys, Mr. Steve Bright. The club had a very successful year planning activities such as a CROP Walk which raised money for food much needed by the hungry people across the world.

Administering Excellence

The administration of Southwestern School Corporation was headed by a new superintendent, Dr. Patrick Leahy. The staff worked hard throughout the year to see that everything ran smoothly.

The high school was directed by Delbert King for the twenty-second year. Again Mr. King led us through another successful school year.

Both administrations worked together and the end result was a successful 1980-1981 school year.

Getting The Job Done

It was just another year of phones ringing, filing, announcing, and accounting for the high school administration. Mr. Delbert King and his two faithful secretaries, Mrs. Karen Boldery and Mrs. Linda Dickey, rendered their services, never muttering a word.

As the school year began, the office was packed with newly enrolling students and other annual problems. The weeks and months rolled away and things began to move much more smoothly. Spring arrived and the office began to show new life because they knew that a vacation from all of this was drawing nigh. As the school year came to an end, the administration finished the 1980-81 school routine. Then began work on the 1981-82 year. The work is never done!

Takin' Care Of Business

What would we do without them, those tediously working mentors who always manage to get our problems straightened out no matter what the insurmountable odds are — Mrs. Carolyn Kershner and the famous Mr. David Mount. Mrs. Kershner is the rookie of the deo with six years of counseling to her credit while Mr. Mount has been here a remarkable fourteen years. Any Southwestern student will tell you that the counselor's expertise is truly justified by all of their time and effort.

Although he is a counselor, Mr. Mount finds the time and energy needed to do other tasks to compliment his counseling such as teaching, refereeing volleyball games, scorekeeper, statistician, and all around nice guy. He taught this year's psychology class.

What would we do without them? It's hard to say. We probably would end up as a mass confusion of bumbling students. We are all most grateful for their help and consideration.

M . . . M . . . M . . . Good!

Although they do not get the recognition that they rightly deserve, the cafeteria workers put in many long, hard hours preparing nutritionally balanced meals. Even though the student body did not always appreciate the food, the cooks tried their best to give us the type of food we want. With the tight squeeze on money these days, the ladies were limited in what they could serve. Since there was a money shortage, the price of lunches increased again this year.

During the year each cook had the task of preparing and serving the food. The food selection ranged from the usual hamburgers and French fries to out of the ordinary pizza casserole. If the students did not want the hot lunches, they could help themselves to the salad bar or they could have a wide variety of choices from the ice cream department.

Helping Hands

Endless is the work of the janitors during the school days. The work of people like Sam Watkins, Tom Potter, and Fred New should not go unnoticed. Our custodians work hard each day to make our school a pleasant and clean place to study. During the spring these men are busy trimming the lawns and putting litter in its place. Being a janitor is more than pushing a broom; it is being a friend to students. These friendships between students and custodians mean a lot to all included. The custodians at Southwestern are appreciated, and without them, the school would not be the same.

Rebel Pride

1. We Are The Seniors

The class of 1981 will long be remembered as an enthusiastic group which made great strides in every area of high school life. When the seniors graduated in May, they left the school forever, but they also left behind many accomplishments. Known for its unity, the class worked hard to reach its goals and to meet all the demands of high school life.

A special feature of the year was the Senior Variety Show, staged in October. Fourteen acts were presented, and the seniors displayed a wide range of talents in their songs, dance routines, and skits. Highlighting the show was a visit from the Blues Brothers, portrayed by John Neher and Dewayne Liter. The show was a fun and profitable experience for the seniors as well as an entertaining production for the public.

Renowned for its spirit and enthusiasm, the class of 1981, nonetheless, made a weak showing in Spirit Week. The theme was "Rebel Empire" with decorations dating back to Roman times. The seniors finished fourth overall, but did not despair. Instead, the seniors laughed at themselves and turned the event into a week-long toga party.

Perhaps the best-loved memory of the seniors was their trip to Florida in April. After several months of peddling candy and pinching pennies, they headed for Daytona Beach. They soaked up the sun (and a little rain) and also paid a day-long visit to Walt Disney World in Orlando. It was a time for getting better acquainted and for letting go of inhibitions. The seniors returned with photographs, suntans, and lots of special memories. Thanks to chaperones Mr. Delbert King, Mr. David Mount, and Mrs. Carolyn Kershner, the trip was a success for everyone.

The class of 1981 made great strides in academics, graduating seventeen members with honors. Ranked at the top were valedictorian Larry Phillips, with straight A's, and salutatorian Donnie Adams. Lynne Ferguson and Lisa Cook were commended for their PSAT scores. Nearly half of the members of the class planned to continue their educations at college, with Purdue University as the most popular choice. One outstanding senior, Troy Stoner, was awarded an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The senior class was well represented on athletic teams. Five seniors played varsity basketball, and four senior girls inspired them to win, serving on the varsity cheerleading squad. Reigning over the basketball season was Angie Wyne, homecoming queen. Donnie Adams was captain of the cross country team and played basketball, and as a result, was honored as the most athletic. Cindy Webster was the most athletic girl. Recipients of letter jackets were Scott Horner, Angie Wyne, Robb Lanham, Bill Hensler, Donnie Adams, Denise Wyatt, Cindy Webster, Kim Sedam, Mary Hertz, Dewayne Liter, and John Neher. Senior girls were vital to Southwestern athletics. They proved this fact by defeating the junior girls in a tug-o-war in the Class Olympics, which earned the seniors a victory!

Many seniors were elected to or named to important positions. Robb Lanham was president of the student body, and Bill Hensler served as vice president. Class officers were President, Jennifer King; Vice-President, Liz Gross; Secretary, Mary Ann Shelton, and Treasurer, Tracey Wyne. Lisa Cook was named DAR Good Citizen. Reigning over the prom were king and queen Robb Lanham and Teresa Hendrickson.

The class of 1981 left its mark on Southwestern forever. In future years the members of this fine class will certainly leave their individual marks on the world.

All were glad for they had accomplished their goal after many years. And some were sad for this was the last time they would be together and that brought on tears.

The scene was Sunday, May 17, in the high school gymnasium where over one hundred members of the class of 1981 received their long-awaited diplomas in the six o'clock ceremony. The theme for this year's commencement exercises was "Reach high, for stars lie hidden in your soul. Dream deep, for every dream precedes the goal."

The valedictory address was presented by Larry Phillips, and salutatorian Donnie Adams also delivered a memorable speech. Greg Adkins, who was selected by the class, was the senior speaker, and he delivered a meaningful farewell address. Randy Weldman sang a vocal selection entitled "You Never Walk Alone", accompanied on piano by Sara Springstun.

Other seniors participating in the proceedings were Cindy Webster, who opened the ceremony with the Invocation, and Scott Horner closed the ceremony with the benediction.

Mr. Delbert King introduced the honor students and the unusually large number of seniors having perfect attendance throughout their thirteen years in school. There were many seniors with perfect attendance ranging from four years to Janet Kleopfer's total of ten straight years.

Dr. Patrick Leahy, superintendent, presented the class of 1981. Mr. Delbert King, principal, awarded the diplomas. Jennifer King, class president, lead the class in the changing of the tassels.

The band participated in the commencement as always. Under the direction of Sara Springstun, it performed the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" to usher in the senior class.

Eight Juniors were chosen to serve as the graduating class's ushers. Selected for this honor were Deanna Cox, Rhonda Harrison, Tina Hilleary, Molly Totten, Scott Blair, Jeff Curry, Rocky King and Marvin Reece.

The senior class went out in style, participating in a very special and unique ceremony. They will always be remembered for their togetherness.

We've Got Tonight

"We've got tonight." This was the way many of the juniors and seniors who attended the 1981 prom felt. As a matter of fact, that was the theme selected for the prom by the juniors. Dancing to the sounds of Flyers and signing one another's memory books kept everyone quite busy during the evening. Thanks to the creativeness of Mrs. Dorothy Duke, the junior class sponsor, and members of the junior class, a new tradition was launched at the prom: a tradition that was to become known as the changing of the garter. Following the ceremony, a dance was dedicated to the newly initiated ceremony.

To top off the night, the Royal Court was announced. They were seniors Teresa Hendrickson, Queen, and Robb Lanham, King; juniors Charlotte Meiers, Princess, and Louis Gerbig, Prince. After the raining of balloons, the king and queen and their court engaged in the royal dance. Other candidates for king were Bill Hensler, Mitch Imel, John Neher, Dewayne Liter, and Terry Taylor. For queen they were Jennifer King, Liz Gross, Tammy Mahoney, Marlena Imel and Mary Ann Shelton. The prince and princess candidates were Rocky King, Kevin McKinley, Jeff Curry, Marvin Reece, Rhonda Harrison, Paula Wilson, Deanna Cox, and Tina Hilleary. As the night came to a close, the band appropriately played "We've Got Tonight," and we did!

Seniors Get Beached

The seniors became the envy of the school as they prepared to depart on their Senior Trip and were even more so after they all got back. For seven days Southwestern was peaceful; then the wave of Daytona Beach t-shirts hit the school. Disney World felt the presence of the class of '81, along with St. Augustine and all of Daytona. We are sure that everyone had a blast, and that there are still some people in Florida who remember our seniors and will for a long time!

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Change The Old For The New

This year Southwestern welcomed two exchange students, Patricia Zapeda and Jaime Guillermo Cortez Perez. Patricia was from Mexico City, Mexico, and resided at the Stanley Totten's. Jaime was from Peru, South America, and stayed with the Gene Greens. Both students knew very little English but worked hard to communicate.

In exchange for our two foreign students, we had two Rotary Exchange Students, Karen Chambers and Ronda Webb. Karen was in the Philippines and had taken up modeling as a part time job. Ronda was in Chihuahua, Mexico, and she enjoyed bowling or going to the disco. Both girls learned much from their adventures in other countries.

"Are You Ready?"

Every year at Southwestern all the seniors and juniors asked the same question, "Are You Ready?" Each one selected his path and vocational students chose a technical training. Each student worked for a year or two on a certain trade. There are a variety of fields from which to choose students receive jobs after leaving the school.

Southwestern had a large percentage of the students at the Versailles Vocational school. There were several girls enrolled in the cosmetology course, an all day class in Versailles. When they finished the rigorous training, they could apply to become licensed beauticians. The sales and marketing course placed each of its seniors on a job at the end of the year. The list went on for the different trades and their advantages.

On Honors' Day Rick Bird was presented with the Outstanding Vocational Student certificate.

Learning To Vote And Walk

The teaching of the mind, people in relationships with other people, and the functions of government were just few topics that seniors discussed this year.

Government class was treated to the opportunity to run for office and to vote in an actual voting booth. With 1980 being an election year, the students really enjoyed being part of the political process.

Sociology gave the seniors a chance to study groups and their relationships with each other.

Psychology class was under veteran teacher David Mount. Along with the ordinary reading and writing, the students performed different psychological tests that help put theories into real practice. Both the Government and Sociology class were taught by Mr. Kettig Coghill, who has taken a leave from Southwestern to continue his studies.

Classes like Government, Psychology and Sociology help students understand Society and become better citizens.

Living In Southwestern

The Family Living class at Southwestern participated in many activities this year. The students held numerous class discussions concerning the problems that face the young adult of today. Having access to the Home Ec room, the class cooked a variety of dishes, such as, lasagna, chicken, cookies, candies, breads, and different types of breakfasts.

Members of Family Living were involved in various learning experiences throughout the year. Class members were given real life situations and asked to give their opinions on the matter at hand. The students felt that Family Living should continue to be a choice for the students who will become seniors at Southwestern High School in the future.

Speaking Of Comp

Both the speech and composition classes were an interesting part of a senior's preparation for future college life. Communication taught seniors the art of verbalization while composition drew out the hidden writing abilities of many students.

Speech classes experienced a new teacher this year; Mrs. Chadwanna Methany added several new dimensions to her class. Speech students made many different types of speeches from demonstration to persuasion. Many of the demonstrational speeches proved to be quite interesting and in some cases the class got to eat the topic after the speech had ended. As a final exam the class members had to research, write, and present twenty minute speeches.

Senior Comp class was expanded to two classes, but the work load was still very much the same. The comp classes wrote over 100 different assignments which varied from children's stories to critical reviews. The most extensive work was the research paper written during Christmas vacation. Students also wrote the scripts for a radio show produced by WORX. In this project they were able to use some of the skills learned in Mrs. Methany's class.

The use of verbal and written communication is an ability that is vital for proper expression of one's thoughts and feelings.

Don't Underestimate The Power Of A Junior!

4. Mysterious junior magician Sharick Wade concentrates on a new magic trick to show the student body at next year's talent show.

5. Being editor-in-chief of a yearbook takes a lot of time and effort. Co-editors Joyce Hertz and Debby Jackson discuss the matter of the opening section.

From Rags to Riches

"From rags to riches" would seem the appropriate phrase to be sung by this year's junior class. The juniors, who won Spirit Week with a dazzling performance entitled Muppet World, gained respect from the other classes that made the year a sweet one.

Paula Cole, Kelly Douglas, Julie Ford, and Ron Kuntz were the class officers, the backbone of the Junior Class when it came to organizing Spirit Week and the Prom. Mrs. Dorothy Duke, class sponsor, was the force behind the backbone.

Responsible for some of the year's dances and special events was the student council. Elected this year from the junior class were the following members: Dana Bruther, Rhonda Harrison, Tina Hilleary, Kathy Kaag, and Rocky King.

In order to have activities, one must raise money. The junior class participated in the traditional fund raiser, the selling of magazine subscriptions. Charlotte Meirs was the top salesperson with a contributing effort of over $2,000 worth of subscriptions. The juniors made a profit of $3,411.89 from a total sale of $8,300. Monies from the magazine and the junior-run concession stand went towards the hosting of the Junior-Senior Prom which was held in April at the Madison Moose Lodge.

The Prom was a great success. The juniors set an example to be followed by future junior classes in the organization and preparation of this year's Prom. "Not Tonight" was this year's theme and the music was provided by "Flyers".

The juniors of 1982 had many outstanding and accomplished students. Rhonda Harrison and Dana Bruther were picked for Girls' State and Ron Webb and Jeff Curry were picked for Boys' State. Jeff Curry, Teresa Johnson and Lisa Wolfe were chosen as the alternates for the annual basketball banquet, Jeff Curry and Ron Webb received awards for their athletic ability. Marvin Reece showed us all that sports are not always everything as he was a candidate for the National Council of Teachers of English Writing Contest and yet also had the time and energy to compete on the cross-country and track teams. Joyce Hertz, who won the "Hustle Award", was a great asset to the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team along with Molly Totten, Linda Yount and Teresa Johnson. The athletic potential of the junior class was tremendous and we should be thankful for their ability to represent the school next year. Joyce Hertz and Debbie Jackson were the co-editors of this year's yearbook.

The juniors proved that if a class can work together like this year's did, they can do whatever they set their minds to do.

The Glamour Of Business . . .

The glamour of the business classes has yet to be discovered, but these courses were a vital part of Southwestern educational programs. This year students in business classes learned many skills which not only helped them personally but also prepared them for possible job opportunities or future education. Teaching these widely popular classes were Mr. Jake Kloepfer, Mrs. Linda Caudill, and Mrs. Dorothy Duke.

Mr. Kloepfer taught General Business, Accounting, and Typing. General Business class learned such things as writing out checks and balancing bank accounts, and his accounting class wrestled with ledger sheets and income tax returns.

Teaching Business Law and Typing I was Mrs. Dorothy Duke. Business Law class had many discussions and debates over different legal procedure. In order to see this more clearly, the class took a trip to the Jefferson County Court House to witness a trial. In her typing classes as in Mr. Kloepfer's the student gained typing speed and accuracy. Both classes did snow country projects and typed research papers.

Shorthand was another class offered to the student body. In it Mrs. Caudill taught the students dictation, improved their English vocabulary, and developed their basic skills.

Files, Folders And Fun!

The second year for clerical practice found many students taking this class. Mrs. Dorothy Duke, the teacher of the class, divided the course into several parts by offering many skills in the clerical profession. Some skills that were taught were duplication, typing, dictaphone, machines, and filing. One large responsibility that the students had was preparing copy and typing work for many the SW faculty members. Not only did the students help the teachers, but they also worked in the high school and junior high offices. There they ran errands, copied materials, answered the telephone.

On Honor's Day several students received numerous awards for their duties in clerical. Kendra Cutshall received one for most copies made on the giant Xerox machine-140, 181.

Mrs. Duke planned many field trips throughout the year, one of the more exciting to the IBM offices in Louisville, Kentucky. During the year several speakers come to visit.

Talking With The World

Some people are brave enough to tackle another language besides trying to master English.

Spanish students trying to improve their Spanish went to Mexico. Students also celebrated foreign language week by decorating the hall in front of the office with many projects. Spanish classes had guests from nine different countries visit Southwestern. A Spanish chicken and rice dinner was served one day.

French students studied the language with vigor. This year they constructed French posters to adorn the halls. They also had two French cuisine dinners at Mrs. Mary Sue Barnett's house.

Latin students had an adventurous year. They traveled to New Albany for a Latin convention. During the year students enjoyed toga parties. So everyone would know they were Latin students, they bought tee-shirts imprinted with Snoopy and "Toga Toga Toga".

Everyone in all these classes had fun and learned that English is not the only language in America.

Lower right: Early in the year interested students like Clement Beckman, Greg Stoner, Robb Osborn and Meg Hash listen attentively as Mrs. Shirley Kloefer speaks to them of Mexico and Spain and bull fights.

Lower left: These models of the pyramids in Mexico were created by Spanish III students during foreign language week.

Poets, Authors And Other Things

Frost, Fitzgerald and Faulkner were only three of the authors studied in the English classes as Southwestern. English and literature may seem boring to most people, but they were necessary parts of everyday living.

Our school was fortunate to have teachers like Mrs. Ann Campbell and Mrs. Lorna Naylor, freshmen instructors; Ms. Tamara Ross, sophomore teacher; Mrs. Dorothy Wykoff, junior instructor English and literature, Mrs. Chadwanna Matheny, senior teacher. These teachers tried to add a variety of activities to brighten up our classes.

Freshmen had poetry projects to test their writing skill. Sophomores had a new teacher to break in for the years to come. They had Shakespeare projects along with sharing a movie with the juniors called, The Taming of the Shrew. Juniors read The Great Gatsby and watched it on the video TV. Later while discussing Mark Twain they watched Life on the Mississippi. Seniors read Lord of the Flies and Animal Farm as special class projects.

History Today . . .

Starting the year off right were Miss Marsha Jackson and Mr. Micheal Havey, who continued to share their knowledge of history. Miss Jackson taught World History and U.S. History. Both of these classes presented numerous plays, trials and book reports pertaining to the time of history they were studying. Something that was required last year and this year in U.S History was a term paper. The students picked their own topics for the eight to nine page papers.

Teaching Mini-Courses and U.S. History was Mr. Havey. His U.S. History class also did reports and other types of projects. In the Mini-Courses classes Mr. Havey taught about the Civil War, the United States since World War II, Germany, and Russia. These classes were not the usual history classes; the students did such things as reports and debates. They also went on several field trips, one to Perryville, Kentucky where they witnessed a re-make of the battle fought there during the Civil War. They went to a German restaurant in Louisville.

Miss Jackson and Mr. Havey tried to make history more interesting this year by adding different types of activities both in and out of class.

Upper left: This year two girls were picked as Luger candidates, Kellie Kuntz and Rhonda Harrison. They are getting last minute information from Miss Marsha Jackson, history teacher.

Center: Elected to go to Boys' and Girls' State were Dana Bruther, Ron Webb and Rhonda Harrison.

The Class of '83 had an upside down year. After showing the school their extreme talent as freshmen, they settled in and enjoyed just being sophomores. The year ended victoriously for them, however, with their win in the class tug-o-war. The sophomores were led by Matt Morrill, president; Tracy Taylor, vice president; Suzan Bair, secretary; and Laura Jackson, treasurer. Mrs. Maria Coghill advised the class.

The men of the class led the Student Council for the sophomores. Members were Jeff Bruther, Greg Wyne, Jeff Gray, Don Brooks, Anita Hendrickson, and Susan Sage.

Many members of the Class of 1983 were cheerleaders. In fact, the girls' varsity squad was composed of all sophomores and Susan Sage and Julie Adams were members of the junior varsity team.

Several sophomores participated in band this year with Richy Shaffer and Matt Morrill serving on the officers' team. The Rifle Corps included Anita Hendrickson while the flag section had sophomores Robin Banks and Tracy Taylor. Shawna Bray, Lora Dickey and Lori Couch were necessary members of the Drill Team.

Four sophomores, Jeff Bruther, Paul Keller, Matt Morrill, and Susan Sage were inducted into Quill and Scroll this year. There were also eight new members in National Honor Society. Denise Cash, Beth Gangl, Mendy Hord, Paul Keller, Julie Meredith, Carlos Suarez, Norma Tolle, and Judi Webster had a 3.5 or above grade average.

The Class of '83 was an athletic one. There were two varsity cross country runners, Matt Morrill and Greg Wyne, both letter winners and members of the Regional team. Matt Morrill was a member of the golf team. Sheila Rusk was the only varsity volleyball player; however, seven other sophomores were hard working players on the junior varsity. Junior varsity basketball was composed of several sophomores working hard to make the team a success. Sheila Rusk and Tracy Taylor saw action on the varsity. Playing boys' varsity basketball were Greg Wyne and Dave Stucker who lettered and Steve Adams, who also saw action on the JV team along with several other sophomores. Sophomores were necessary parts of the spring athletic program. Track members were Matt Morrill, Kevin Means, Steve Brittain, Carlos Suarez, Rob Stewart, Julie Adams, Dottie Surratt, and Ronda Uebel. Baseball also seemed to be a hit for sophomores. Dave Stucker and Don Brooks participated on the varsity while several others played JV ball. A sport not to be forgotten was wrestling. Seven sophomores participated in this new competition; they were Jeff Bruther who was recognized as the captain, the most pins and the most take downs; Clement Beckman; Rob Stewart; Rodney Mahoney; Eddie Goodin; Carlos Suarez who received the Hustle Award; John Whisman; and Dennis Watterson.

Award winning sophomores in FFA included Jeff Wehrkamp, Jeff Gray, Don Brooks, Brian Amick, Paula Short, and Keith Dixon. Thesplan awards went to Beth Gangl, Terri Graves, Dennis Stockdale, and Carlos Suarez. Terri Graves received the Drama Club Hardest Worker Award. The Hugh O'Brien Award went to Carlos Suarez.

Time passed so quickly and the class only had memories left. Southwestern's sophomores will always remember driver's education and finally getting their licenses, Perry Heaven, third place in the school olympics, tug-a-war champs, sex education in health class, sophomore English, and most of all Mrs. Keach's deep love for the sophomore class!

Hit The Nail On The Head

"Whistle while you work" was exactly what the shop class did. Everyday the students were busy making a new and more challenging project than the day before. All of the seventh grade students looked forward to making rockets and then getting to test fly them. Then each student made a tool box for his tools and a small piece of furniture for around the house.

Meanwhile the high school students made things that could be used here at school. Bruce Tandy made two light tables for the journalism staff and other students have made furniture for the office. Industrial Arts does not have much equipment as of yet, but each year they work a little harder for something more.

It's Not For Women Only!

This year's junior and senior high home economics classes have really started to blossom. Now when students walk into one of the kitchens they not only see girls, but guys, too. This year the number of guys in the home economics courses has tripled. The students were taught how to prepare and serve food plus the art of sewing. Each student did a sewing project which could have been anything from an afghan to a zoot suit. While in the kitchen one could always find a delicious tid bit of Christmas candy, pizza, casseroles, and cookies of every kind.

There is a class that is often forgotten and it shouldn't be; it is the clothing and home furnishing class. This year's clothing students studied the social and psychological aspects of clothing, while the home furnishings class has learned how to furnish and decorate a house to fit the person. Both of these classes have worked hard all year and deserve some recognition.

Future Farmers Skilled To Work

The Southwestern agriculture department got a new beginning this year. With the coming of instructor Ken Salkeld, more and varied plans were adopted for use in the three classes. Techniques in welding, the repair of three tractors, farm wood programs, including gates and feeders, were only a few of the classroom activities in which future farmers found themselves involved. Students were taught the techniques of soil, crop, and livestock judging. Information gained in the agriculture classes was applied to the contests entered in the FFA program; thus, there could not be a strong FFA chapter without a sound classroom instructional base. Students visited the Farm Machinery Show in Louisville.

Outstanding students in the ag program this year were Agriculture I-Jim Tingle; Agriculture II-Jeff Wehrkamp; and Agriculture III-Everett Clashman.

Fit And Trim

Physical Education and Health take the new over old. A new sport was added to the P.E. agenda—archery. Everyone seemed to have a good time playing Indian. Now archery was a very serious sport and the P.E. students enjoyed it very much.

Mr. Steve Bright's first hour health class lost 100 pounds as a class. Each member of the class pledged to lose ten pounds. It took the class one month to achieve the weight loss. The Health and P.E. classes had two student teachers from Hanover College, Valerie Dillion and Dave Jones, who learned a lot from our energetic Southwestern students.

The Wise 1's

Geometry, general math, algebra, trigonometry are all classes of mathematics, and they are all taught at Southwestern by Mrs. Barbara Ellefesen, Mr. Joe Barnett, and Mr. Bill Finnegan.

Math has not changed much in the past couple of years. As a matter of fact, it has never changed. It is still the same adding and subtracting, multiplying and dividing. No matter how much it stays the same, it all adds up!

Lower right: Tom Conard shows his real face on Halloween dress up day as he prepares to face Algebra II.

The Way We Were

Mr. Charles Tackett, Mr. Bill Finnegan, and Mrs. Maria Coghill were the teachers who are famous for teaching the sciences. Mr. Tackett, alias CT or Uncle Charlie, was responsible for teaching chemistry. He was extremely well known for his weekly "picnics" on Wednesday. Mrs. Coghill taught Biology I and II. She has shown various movies on the development of species and also took her Biology II class to the Louisville Zoo. Mr. Finnegan taught physics to all willing seniors.

Those honored in science on Honors Day were Donnie Adams, Troy Stoner, and Leanna Tolle.

"84" Does More

This year's freshman class proved to be active in all aspects of high school, putting in a good showing wherever they went. There were many activities and events during the Southwestern school year, and freshmen participated in many of these.

Among them was Spirit Week, in which they placed second, beating out the sophomores and seniors and taking defeat only from the juniors. Freshman class officers were Penny Skorich, Todd Bruther, Becky Warf, and Carter Cloyd. Freshman student council members were Brian Jackson, Todd Bruther, Becky Warf, Donny Wyatt, Carter Cloyd, and Tom Ellefsen. During the fall, the band and the flag and rifle corps played a big part. Freshmen in this organization were Penny Skorich, Kim Bitner, and Lisa McCloud, all flag girls. Many freshmen were also members of the band.

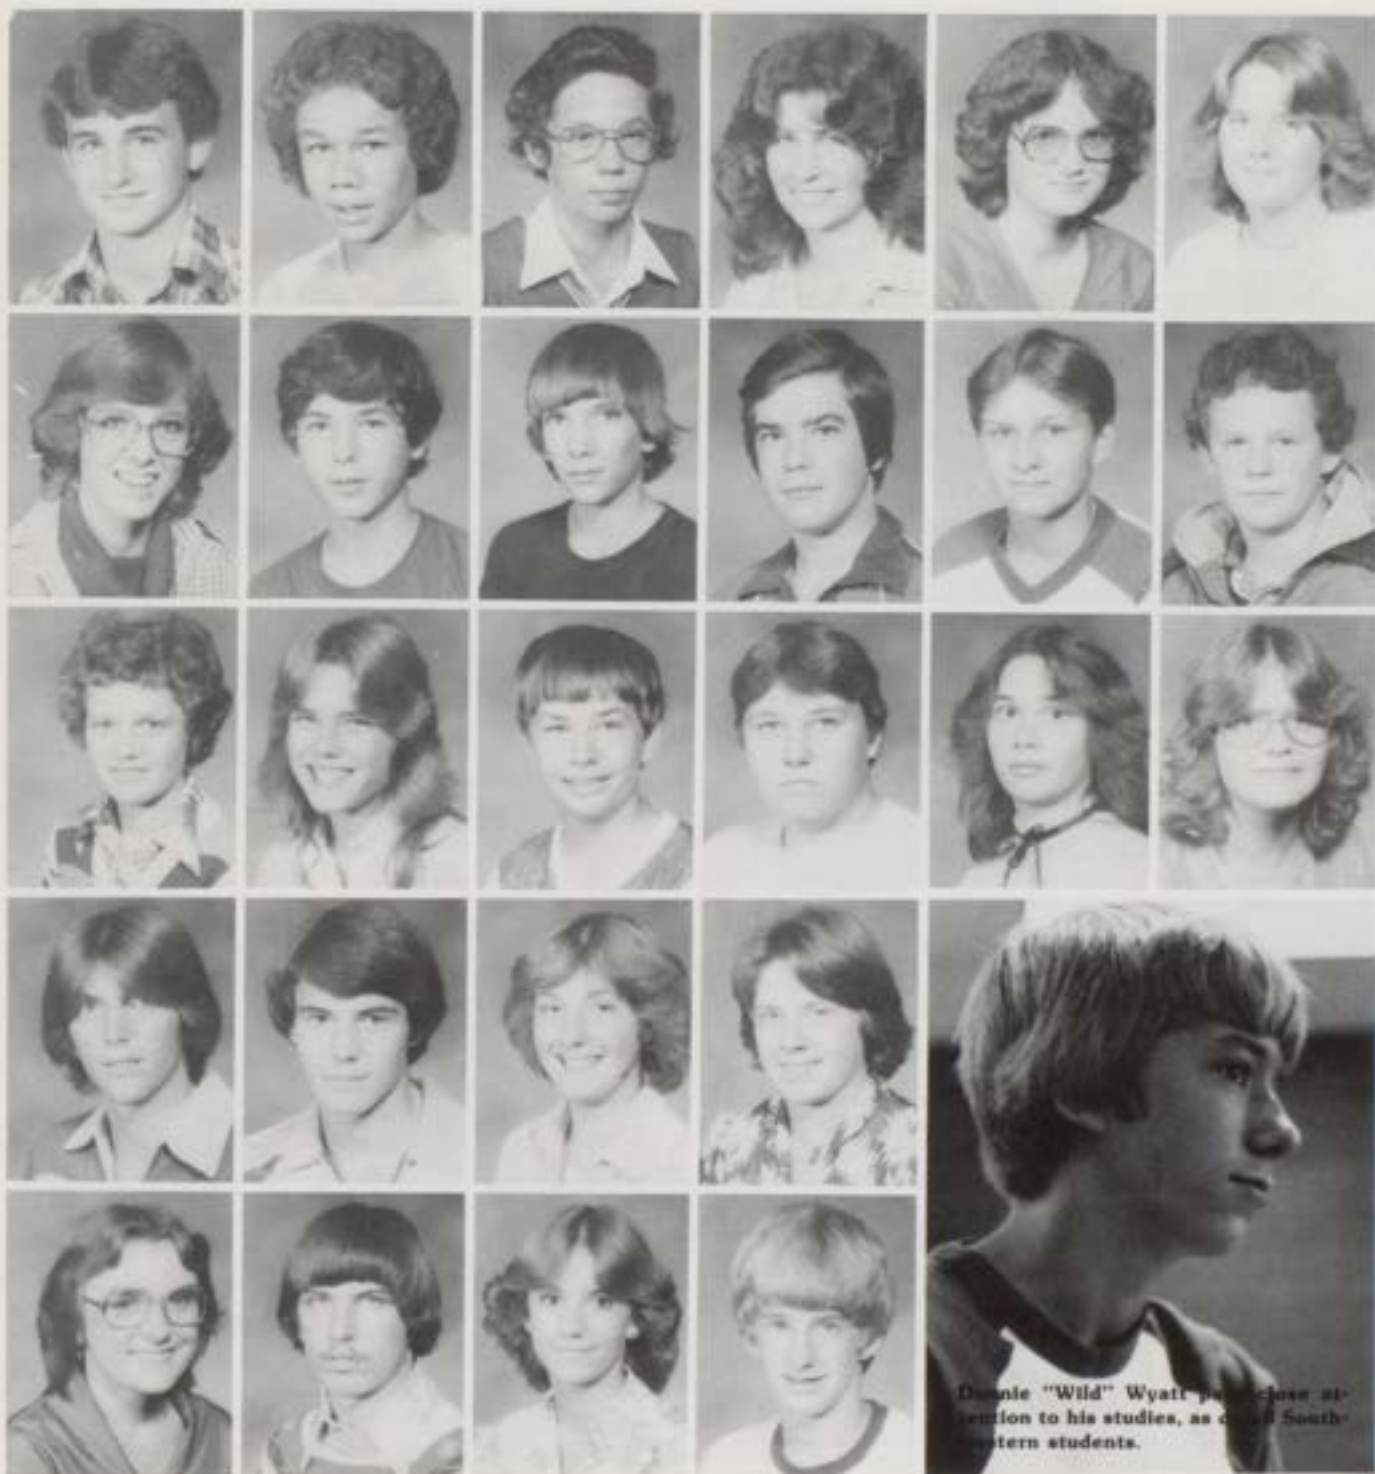

During the basketball season, freshman cheerleaders helped cheer on our team. They were Bobbi Mitchell, Tracy Gray, Liz Thomas, Tammy Webb, and Kirsten Worcester. Many freshmen also showed their support for the team by cheering in the pep club.

In FFA, they were very evident in activities. During the year, Dallas Hardy and Joe Neher, green-hand president and vice-president, got a first and second in a speaking contest.

Freshmen participating in the annual FHA/Art Club Talent Show were Allen Davidson in "The Streak", Caren Johnson and Gary Foster in the band, "High Gear", and Lisa Stubbins doing a dance routine to "It's a Love Thing."

Freshman class officers for 1980-81 are Carter Cloyd, Penny Skorich, Becky Warf, and Todd Bruther. Freshman class sponsors are Bill Finnegan and Charles Tackett.

Donnie "Wild" Wyatt pays close attention to his studies, as do all Southwestern students.

Chris Watkins tries to understand why his book does not have any pictures for him to look at.

The 1980-81 CONFEDERATE staff managed to write, edit, and point their way through another ten issues under Adviser Mrs. Marcia Morrill and co-editors Scott Horner and Lynne Ferguson.

Renovation took place on the pages of THE CONFEDERATE during the year. The front page underwent a complete facelift. CONFEDERATE covers now were adorned by an 8x10 picture and a story to accompany it. At the bottom sneak previews of inside stories were given.

Many individuals outside of the journalism classes helped in the production of THE CONFEDERATE. Dr. Ralph Selfert, a Hanover College math professor, drew a new banner for the publication. Mrs. Morrill was helped by a Hanover student teacher, Miss Lisa Deleo, who proved her skill in highlighting photographs and stories during her stay.

The 1980-81 staff was a large one. Aiding editors Scott Horner and Lynne Ferguson was Bill Varble as assistant. Mary Hertz was business manager and Phillip Hawk, advertising manager. Graphics editor was Jerry Stucker; in charge of photography was Kerby Thomas. Mary Ann Shelton and Gene Cloyd shared sports editor; Marlena Imel was news editor, and Dawn Ligon served as feature editor. Elaine Law handled the fashion.

During the course of the year, THE CONFEDERATE staff members helped themselves financially through candy bar and carnation sales and educationally by evaluating themselves and the newspaper for each issue. THE CONFEDERATE made progress in 1980-81, but it hopes for excellence just as hard in 1981-82 under editor Bill Varble.

Colorguard Super Great!

To be an undefeated colorguard in Indiana is a great honor, but to be the only undefeated guard is even better as the 1980-81 colorguard found to be true. There were nineteen girls on the squad and it took 100 percent from every girl to make this possible. Mrs. Sara Springstun was the sponsor, and without her none of the prestige would have been won.

The girls started the year off with band camp. There they learned the award winning field show that they performed with the band. This show won them six trophies from five competitions which included overall trophies at District Contest in Columbus and the Hancock County Contest. This achievement was a great one since all seven rifles were newly elected and only four of the twelve flags had returned from last year. They were also invited to one of the most prestigious guard competition in Indiana. There were approximately twenty other schools performing. At this contest the girls had to undergo a rigid inspection and then perform a coordinated show on the basketball court. This was the show that they performed at the home basketball games in their new uniforms.

The flag section of the colorguard had twelve members. The girls were Robin Banks, Kim Bitner, Jamie Davis, Kellie Douglas, Laura Howard, Marlena Imel, Tammy Mahoney, Lisa McCloud, Fronni Parder, Penny Skorich, Tracy Taylor, and Tracey Wyne. A greatly enlarged rifle corps completed the colorguard membership. The girls chosen for the squad were Lisa Cook, Jeri Degler, Liz Gross, Anita Hendrichson, Teresa Keith, Elaine Law, and Darcy Varble.

Higher And Higher

Straight To State

The age of Southwestern's Marching Rebels is here! Under the direction of Mrs. Sara Springstun, the band has been built up to be one of the best in Southern Indiana. She arrived at Southwestern in 1978 when the band was in a slump. She held summer programs of marching for parades, and although the work was hard and sometimes tiring, it all paid off in the end.

On July 4, 1980, the band made this year's first public appearance. They marched in the Madison Regatta Parade, playing the song "Let It Be Me". After that came the Jeffersonville Steamboat Parade on September 4. The band competed against fifteen other marching bands, including those from New Albany, Jeffersonville, Clarksville, and St. Xavier in Louisville. They still came out on top, winning Best Marching Band. On September 13 the band traveled to Canaan to march in the annual Canaan Fall Festival. The Marching Rebels were invited to make a special performance at the Hanover-Taylor football game on September 20. They performed their award-winning eight minute field show.

On September 27, the Rebels traveled to Meade County, Kentucky to perform in their first contest. The band ranked fourth in their class. After that contest the band came home and made minor improvements. The band then traveled to Columbus on October 4 to perform in the District Contest. After performing, the Marching Rebels discovered that they had won a first division rating and were eligible to travel to State. On October 11, they journeyed to Tell City, Indiana, and won Best Marching Band in Parade, First Division Field Competition Trophy, and First Division Plaque. The Rebels were eligible to go to Terre Haute on October 18 to perform in the Indiana State Music Association. They won a disappointing second division trophy, missing a first by one point. November 1 was the date they traveled to Hancock County, Kentucky, to perform in their last contest. They won the first place marching parade, second place field competition, and a superior rating plaque. The halting of the steps ended Marching Rebels competitions.

After the marching season was over, the Rebels continued to perform with the elementary and junior high school bands. They hosted a Christmas concert on December 9 and a spring concert. The high school attended a contest at Madison on April 25, winning a first place.

Take A Visit To Funkytown

With new uniforms and a new look, this year the Drill Team whooped it up to songs such as "Birth of the Blues" and "Funkytown". They really looked sharp in their new blue skirts and red blouses and very professional. They not only performed routines at basketball games, but they also marched in parades over the summer. The Regatta Parade in Madison provided for a lot of fun, and they were also in the Jeffersonville Steamboat Days Parade where Southwestern won first place and the Santa Claus Parade in Madison which took place in November. Lisa Cook, Elaine Law, and Liz Gross attended camp at Blue State last summer where they learned the routines that the girls performed over the season.

It's Fun To Create With Crayola

Art class, under Mr. Gene Robertson, did more than just fingerpaint this year. Art classes did such things as sculptures, drawings, and ink sketches. Many of the students' work could be seen on exhibit in the high school library as proof of the skills of our Southwestern students. As well as photographs, drawings, and paintings, there were also statues sculpted from a variety of materials, all made by pupils of Mr. Robertson.

Sing It To The World

This year the high school choir grew enormously under the direction of its new director, Mrs. Cathy Ellis. Members wrote essays and then put them to music during one of their many concerts.

Highlighting the year for this group was undertaking the production of the famed Broadway musical, No, No, Nanette.

Chorus is a very good source for providing students at Southwestern an outlet for the many talents that have been unrealized. Mrs. Ellis has accomplished a job well done.

Books, Books and more Books

This year the high school librarian, Mrs. Serena Keach, managed to keep the library in tip-top condition. With the help of four aides, Sheila Rusk, Kellie Kuntz, Tracy Taylor, and Denise Wyatt, students learned more about the functions of a library. These aides gained school credits for their work. The library contributes much to the atmosphere at Southwestern. It is not only a place of research but also a social gathering place. There is no better place to learn than the SWHS library.

Hard Work Pays Off

With the start of this school year, a new class was added to the secondary curriculum, an individualized instruction class. Mrs. Mary Wilson became the fulltime teacher. She helped students improve their reading levels, their mathematical abilities, and their overall educational talents.

Mrs. Charlotte Wilhelm continued to teach in the individualized instruction program. The class under her direction was involved in a variety of activities. Students made a quilt that was auctioned at the high school fair to raise money for Special Olympics. Mrs. Wilhelm and the quilt had their picture in the paper. During the Special Olympics events the whole class put in a good showing. In the bowling division, Walter Tapp went to the area tournament in Jeffersonville and then on to state in Indianapolis. In track Sandy Boldrey went on to state competition in Terre Haute. Medals were won in the softball throw by Sandy Boldrey, a gold, and Penny Hopper, a bronze.

During the school year, the students showed their talent in doing many individual projects. The class grew plants in science class, and for Mother's Day they prepared flowers. The English class kept busy writing various stories and working on sentences, and the science class studied the environment as part of their learning.

Rebel Roads

Buttons Beat Candy

The leadership of Mrs. Serena Keach and President Tammy Mahoney attributed to the excellent year produced by the Harvey Wiley Chapter of the National Honor Society. Fund raising drives of selling candy and Rebel booster buttons were well accepted. They accumulated enough money to award Creg Adkins and Denise Wyatt $200 scholarships, and Bill Hensler a Harvey Wiley Scholarship of $100.

With the coming of spring there was the arrival of eleven new members to National Honor Society at their annual ceremony. Also a trip to Clarksville and Derby Dinner Playhouse to view The Fantasies was on the spring agenda. This famous play was enjoyed by all.

The new members, along with the old members, helped to form a vital and enthusiastic group that added much to Southwestern High School.

With Quill In Hand

Quill and Scroll was an honorary organization consisting of students who have been initiated because of their outstanding contributions to some form of journalistic work. Popularity of Quill and Scroll and the contributions that this foundation makes to the Southwestern School Corporation and the surrounding communities grew as the number of members grew. In due time, the members of this small chapter will be able to justify their hard work by the recognition that they so deserve.

Sponsorship was provided by Mrs. Marcia Morrill who is the SW High School's senior composition, newspaper, and yearbook teacher.

This year's president was Troy Stoner and assisting him with the treasury/secretarial work was Lynne Ferguson.

Chris Howell, Susan Sage, Jennifer King, Jeff Bruther, Matt Morrill, Kevin Barnes, and Paul Keller were initiated into the Quill and Scroll at a surprise luncheon at the Madison Country Club. Including the newly initiated members, there was a total of 17 members in this year's Quill and Scroll.

Honors' Day was graced with the Quill and Scroll Creative Writing Awards that went to Marlana Imel, Elaine Law, Dawn Ligon, and Mary Ann Shelton. Journalism awards went to Jerry Stucker, Gene Cloyd, Mary Hertz, and Leanna Tolle. A special Photography Award was given to Troy Stoner. Editors' plaques were given to Creg Adkins, Lynne Ferguson, and Scott Horner.

A picnic was held at Mrs. Morrill's home to draw to a close this year's Quill and Scroll activities. Next year promises to be a busy one with the Quill and Scroll members working even harder than this year's to make this organization as well known and respected community wide as it is nationwide.

"We're More Than Just Cookie Jocks"

We are all like little crumbs in a cookie jar with FHA sponsor, Mrs. Sarah Green, being the one who adds all of the perfect ingredients to knead all the crumbs together to make a tasty batch of cookies, FHA members. Mrs. Green has been FHA sponsor for 14 dedicated years. She has always been there whenever she is needed by anyone to provide her service and leadership. Mrs. Green has directed FHA to another outstanding and successful year. Under her guidance FHA accomplished many things for the community and school.

FHA has been very active this year, selling many various types of tee-shirts and sweatshirts to catering for banquets. To begin the year, candidates running for offices campaigned to gain the members' votes. They were, along with new members, formally initiated. Clifty Falls State Park was the site of the informal initiation. Everyone got into some of the action there, and there was not a dull moment.

Everyone looked forward to the yearly trips to the Madison State Hospital. They were always meaningful and rewarding to all who participated and the residents anticipated the arrival with big smiles and open arms. FHA members traveled to the State Hospital Halloween, Christmas and Easter to give parties and to entertain the residents.

FHA accomplished many things during the year. One weekend a few of the FHA members ventured to Indianapolis with Mrs. Green to attend the FHA/Herco State Convention. At the convention Mrs. Green was awarded a plaque as honorary adviser for her numerous years of work with FHA.

Among those who tried to strive out even farther than our local FHA were Mary Kay Thomas, who was elected as FHA District President, and Jama Bibb, chosen Secretary-/Treasurer. To top off another successful year, FHA held their annual spring banquet.

A new wave of encouragement swept over the Southwestern Future Farmers of America during the 1980-81 school year. Under the leadership of a new advisor, Ken Salkeld, and an officer team, consisting of Creg Adkins, Jeff Wehrkamp, Steve Uebel, Lynn Pennington, Kim Schiphorst, and Jim Schiphorst, the club grew and thrived.

For the first time the Chapter's Parliamentary Procedure team went to the sectional contest. The members swept up the District XII contest, talking first place in seven contests. The members also made a sweep in the Proficiency contests, taking four first place awards.

The Parent-Member Banquet was a smash success with approximately 200 people attending. All in all it was a great year.

Student Council-Match Makers Of The Year

No, this is not the match game; it is one of the many special events and activities sponsored by the SWHS student council. Led by President Robb Lanham, the student council ran a dating service. The two people most alike were Fronni Parker and Big Bob Frank. The student council several games at the Spring Fling, Toys for Tots dance, presented a movie, and held the second annual class olympics. Thanks to many dedicated members, the council was able to pay old debts and accumulate a surplus of money which was donated to various charities.

T-shirts were purchased which were orange with Student Council written across the front. Heading the student council was Robb Lanham, president; Bill Hensler, vice-president; Dana Bruther, secretary; Teresa Hendrickson, treasurer; and Mr. Mike Havey, advisor. Striving to liven up high school life was the 1980-81 student council's goal, and they surely met it. With many underclassmen participating and observing, the student council of the future should never again be thought of as a do-nothing organization.

Bleacher Creatures

This year the opposing teams were blown from the stands by the forceful voices of two Pep Clubs, Boys' and Girls'.

The 1980-81 Girls' Pep Club was a roaring success. Officers were Kim Sedam; Lynne Ferguson Treasurer; Karen Stockdale, Secretary. Mrs. Carolyn Kershner gave the club a helping hand as their sponsor. Members ordered new blue and white sweaters which helped them stand out and look great for the team. The Pep Club was at all the games to lead the Rebels to their winning victories. Yelling and stomping, the Pep Club was showed the opposing team that they meant business.

Boys' Pep Club was put together to prove to all the fans that everyone was backing the team. The Boys' Pep Club was lead by a board of directors which included chairman Joe Orr, Troy Stoner, Jeff Bruther, Bobby Moore, Todd Bruther, George Orr, and Marvin Reece. The guys got new shirts designed by the junior high school art teacher Miss Joni Carlos. The club with their loud and forceful voices pepped up the team. This year the pep clubs were a vital part of the Rebel Spirit.

¡Nadie Me Entiende!

Mrs. Shirley Kleopfer was welcomed back as the Spanish Club sponsor for the 1980-81 year. During the Madison Chautaugua the club sold colorful handmade pinatas and delicious baked goods. In the autumn some of the members went to the exciting Mexican Folklore Ballet in Cincinnati where they saw the exotic regional dances. November heralded the arrival of the blue Spanish tee-shirts with a Mexican mouse on the front. Spanish Club held a dance after one of the home ballgames with a Disc-Jockey from KJ-100. The customs of Christmas were observed when the club held a Christmas party. Just in time for sectional the members sold Southwestern Rebel license plates for support of the team.

As spring came, so did the trip to Mexico. Students departed by airplane on March 12. They enjoyed seven exciting days of sunshine and a taste of Mexican culture. In Mexico City some students could not resist the temptation of fighting a "bull". Bravery especially helped Greg Wyne get toppled by the "raging animal". All students arrived home in one piece.

At the Spring Fling the duck pond became Spanish style as it was run by the Spanish Club. For an evening on the town members visited Chichis Restaurant to sample the delicious cuisine. Two representatives, Jama Bibb and Rene Madison, were sent to Ball State University for a Spanish weekend where they learned games and songs of all Spanish cultures.

The officers for the 1980-81 year were Julie Meredith, President; Denise Cash, Secretary/Treasurer; Lisa Hay, Program Chairman; Kim Thompson, Social Chairman. Under these officers the Spanish Club had a profitable as well as enjoyable year.

The Thrill Of Acting

They may not be ready for Broadway, but the 1980-81 Drama Club displayed a lot of talent and effort. After a year of little happening, the club was resurrected with determination and enthusiasm. Under the able-bodied leadership of Mrs. Chadwanna Matheny, senior literature and speech teacher, they presented two major productions. The student body enjoyed A Christmas Farce, written by seniors Donnie Adams and Jeff Tyree. In the spring they performed Neil Simon's Plaza Suite, which was open to the public.

Officers of the Drama Club were president, Lynne Ferguson; vice-president, Marlena Imel; secretary, Janet Kleopfer; and treasurer, Dawn Ligon.

The Thespians Society consisted of members of the club who excelled in certain areas such as writing, directing, acting, and performance. Twelve lucky people gained the required points to be inducted into the Society.

The Drama Club had a very successful year, and the underclass members demonstrated promise for the years to follow.

Southwestern's Own Picassos

Throughout the 1980-81 school year, the Art Club was active in many different school events. They co-sponsored the annual talent show along with the FHA, putting on a great show for the appreciative Southwestern students. There was also a tattoo booth at the school fair and the Madison Chatauga. Gene Robertson, sponsor of the Art Club, had a Christmas party at his house for the members and also took them to the college to see various exhibits and films. One can see many talented students' artwork up on the walls of our own library.

Rebel Spirit

A Night Of "Wyne" With Roses

The night was not only filled with roses but also with laughter, tears, hugs and kisses and, most of all, fawn memories that will be shared through the hearts of all from that one night. The annual homecoming ceremony was held on a cool winter night on December 13 during the game with Southwestern and Rising Sun. Southwestern was the victor and so was senior Angle Wyne who was escorted by Creg Adkins.

Candidates along with Angle for the homecoming queen title were Mary Ann Shelton and Laura Howard escorted by Terry Taylor and Mitchell Imel, who represented the senior class.

The junior class chose Tina Hilleary and Charlotte Myers as their queen candidates. They selected Mark Condrey and Rick Russell to be their escorts.

Sophomore princess, Dottie Surratt, carried the queen's crown. She selected Jeff Bruther to be her escort.

To carry the queen's flowers the freshman class chose Debbie Perry as their princess, and Todd Bruther was her escort.

Seniors Folly It Up

Rebel enthusiasm was rampant early in the first semester as the seniors produced the second installment of the Senior Variety Show. Great talent and entertainment were gathered together by the class of 1981, and with the help of a few special teachers, an hour of entertainment was enjoyed by the student body and the evening audiences.

Many talents were displayed in skits, dances, and songs. The twelve years of school gave thoughtful advice on how to make it through school. The "Legend of Woolly Swamp" heeded a warning of greedy old men. "Ahab the Arab" came alive as the camel hauled a few "bare" facts for those who could stomach it.

A comedy routine was performed by Kevin Barnes and Todd Richmond. The boys' varsity cheerleaders showed their coordination as they did the Varsity Stomp. An action packed rock routine to "Heartbreaker" made its debut in the show. Rapper's Delight was a hit as three seniors danced and lip sang.

Much bravery and courage were needed to appear before an audience to sing. At Southwestern there were such brave souls. Their voices rang through the gym, singing melodies and theme songs. As a special treat Mrs. Cathy Ellis, our new chorus teacher, sang a haunting melody. The Blues Brothers, played by John Neher and Dewayne Liter, made a surprise guest appearance.

The Rebel Rooter class competition was off and running during Spirit Week '80. This year students visited faraway places without leaving the gym. They were witness to the fall of the Senior Empire, and Kermit, the frog, took them away to Muppetland. With the sophomores, a glimpse of heaven, which some of us may never get to view, was seen, and childhood memories were recalled as Mother Goose dropped in.

The Juniors and the freshmen had a close race. Freshmen ranked first in badge, flag, and the obstacle course and second in the yell. Sophomores placed first in the skit. Juniors were first in the yell and hall decorations; they were second in the skit, badge, flag, and obstacle course, thus insuring them of becoming Spirit Week Champions. The seniors achieved second in hall decorations.

As Spirit Week came to an end, the students filed from the gym with only memories of spirited competition left in their minds.

The seniors narrowly beat the juniors in the second annual school olympics, sponsored by the high school student council. Because the seniors tied with the juniors in the regular nine events, 15 girls from each class had a tug-off with the senior women winning. The sophomores were victorious in the strenuous tug-o-war between classes. Final score was 29 to 28—a welcome victory for the seniors; sophomores and freshmen tied with 14 points each.

No, No Nanette

The 1981 Southwestern Junior-Senior High School Choirs, along with other students outside of choir, under the direction of Mrs. Cathy Ellis, produced a musical play, "No, No, Nanette."

"No, No, Nanette" was a musical play about Jimmy Smith, a wealthy man who never got to spend his money the way he liked because his wife would not let him. The play went on to tell about the trouble Mr. Smith got into and out of on a summer weekend in New York and Atlantic City.

The cast consisted of: Tina Hilleary as Nanette; Randy Weidman as Tom; Creg Adkins as Jimmy and Laura Gangl as his wife, Sue; Louis Gerbig portrayed Jimmy's lawyer; Missy Sproessig was his wife; Terri Graves, Teresa Tyree, and Becky Waff played Flora, Betty and Winnie; Beth Gangl as Pauline.

Other members of the cast were: Teresa Abbott, Penny Abbott, Thomas Beckman, Val Bush, Libby Degler, Missy Edwards, Jeanna Gray, Vickie Grubbs, Alfrieda Hamilton, Laurie Habetter, Laura Hindson, Richard Kirschner, Debbie Morrison, Priscilla Norris, Angie Paxton, and Angie Vest.

Upper left: Beth Gangl, as "Pauline", is fed up with the Smith household. A quick trip to Atlantic City will cure that.

Upper right: Laura Gangl and friend do a little one step, two step, three step.

Middle: The elation on the faces of the cast of "No, No, Nanette" after the final performance shows. There were a few tears of joy afterward, too.

Bottom middle: Playing their roles, Randy Weidman and Tina Hilleary are finding it difficult to express their feelings for each other.

Bottom right: Don't look so excited about it, kids! "Billy and Sue", Missy Sproessig and Louis Gerbig, take a break from the show.

Testing 1, 2, 3

Two groups who help to make the school function smoothly are the technicians and the dark room staff. The technicians set up lighting and sound for school productions such as plays and special assemblies. Mr. Bill Finnegan, Mr. David Mount, and Mrs. Serena Keach also take active parts, Finnegan operating the sound system, Mount controlling the lighting, and Keach running the video cassette recorder. The technicians also operate the stage walls and the curtain.

The photographers play a very important part on both the Confederate and Rebian staffs. Staff photographers also work in the darkroom, producing the majority of the pictures used in the Rebian and the Confederate. The photographers work on special projects. Kerby Thomas worked on preschool pictures for students and parents. Matt Morrill and Cindy Webster took pictures for Hanover College. Some of the pictures in the FFA scrapbook were taken by staff photographers.

Dewayne Litter, Robb Lanham, Jeff Gray, and Rocky King set up the stereo for the annual Toys for Tots dance held at Christmas time.

One of the attractions that came to the school is the nationally known basketball team, the Globetravelers. Science teacher Tom Patterson grabs the ball away from a Globetraveler.

Free Time

Infatuated with the amount of assemblies the year, the student body was please with each one. At the beginning of the year students had the pleasure of watching the volleyball team in action against Switzerland County. As the year went on, the students had the chance to see the Traveling Globetravelers, who played an exhibition game with the "old timers" of Southwestern. Receiving a standing ovation from the students for their performance, the Xavier University Singers left with a happy smile. There were other performers who came such as the hypnotis, and the student body received dancing lessons from a couple who came from School Assembly Service, Inc.

One of the more enjoyable assemblies was the pep rally before the sectional. The boys' varsity basketball team was called to the center of the floor and blind folded. They were given twelve girls' names and were told to guess which one of the girls kissed them. Instead of the girls kissing the boys, the mothers of the basketball players came out to give their sons a big wet one right on the kisser. Each one of the guys was stunned when he found out who kissed him.

With a wide variety of organizations throwing dances, the school year was completed. Some of the more special dances were given by the Student Council, who gave the Toys for Tots dance for which the profits went to the underprivileged children. The Rebian staff sponsored the annual Valentine's Day dance. After one of the home basketball games the Spanish Club sponsored a dance with a Disc-Jockey from KJ-100.

Bill Hensler eagerly awaits his smouch from his "mysterious" lady.

Moving On Up

Many days this year were filled with fun and exciting experiences for the eighth students. Although the switching of classes was not new to them, they still had to get used to a new schedule, classes and teachers. Most of the eighth graders were looking forward to moving on up to the wild year in the junior high.

This year in cross country, Mr. Steve Bright guided the team to the 1981 Jefferson County Championship. Bobby Moore was the leader of the team with his best time of 9:47. Ending with a season of four wins and one loss, this year the eighth grade runners could retire their running shoes with pride.

Brian Reardon and Kevin Elliott were the most outstanding eighth grade wrestlers. Mr. Larry Moore lead the wrestling team to its first victory which was against Jeffersonville with a score of 34 to 23.

This was also the second year for the girls' basketball team who had a season of 4 and 4; the eighth grade girls put in a lot of hard work and effort. Mrs. Susie Brown, the seventh grade geography teacher, coached the eighth grade team.

One way the class of '85 broke up the hum-drum routine of blue jeans and T-shirts was by having special days where outfits ranged from three piece suits to the tattered attire of a hobo. During the Christmas and Valentine's Day dances, the eighth graders made up a new dance in which EVERYONE participated. It was called "stand-in". The students paid fifty cents to stand around and listen to music! Although there were many good dancers, most of the students elected to stand on the edges of the dancing circle to listen and watch some of the braver souls.

Student Council was led this year by three eighth graders. Stephanie Bruther was president; Bob Moore, vice president; and Carolyn Dowell, treasurer.

With much anticipation the members of the Class of '85 approached their year as "green" freshmen.

Think! Think! Think!

Project Think was a program to attempt to teach philosophy indirectly in the seventh and eighth grades. The students learned types of arguments for improving reading comprehension and math application skills. The materials allowed students to express their views and to respect the views of others. Members learned to listen to other peoples' points of view with an open mind and to realize that other's views and beliefs were worthy of consideration and not necessarily wrong. Their goal was to develop the insights and not just knowledge imparted from a book.

The project was administered through the seventh and eighth grade math and language arts program. It involved one seventh grade math teacher and one eighth grade math teacher. The language arts section utilized one seventh and one eighth grade English teacher.

Project Think was the brainchild of Dr. Curtis Peters and Tom Pagan from IUS and the Wilson Center. It was felt that students could learn and use many ideas and processes of advanced logic if they were presented suitably. This program was an attempt to do that. Students who participated were randomly selected from the junior high population and the work was subordinated into an existing math or English curriculum. The classes met in regular classrooms and special texts were supplied by the Wilson Center. The parents of participating students were notified about the program. Most parents seemed receptive to the ideas and felt the program was needed and was beneficial.

The purposes of Project Think were: to develop one's ability to recognize and analyze arguments, to distinguish between good and bad arguments, to improve skills in drawing inferences and gaining insights concerning them, to develop respect for views that were different from one's own and for the people who express them, to reflect more deeply on some of life's most basic questions and to gain insights about them, to become more aware of the variety of views which could be offered on most issues, to recognize that all views were not equally good and that the most popular were not necessarily the best; views should be judged, according to the quality of reasons offered in their support.

It Is Almost Written

The junior high newspaper staff consisted of over forty seventh and eighth grade students. The Sizzler concentrated on the activities and news of the junior high students.

Staff members took a field trip early in the year to Muncie, Indiana, where they participated in Ball State's Junior High Journalism Workshop. The paper was judged "Excellent" in the journalism contest held in connection with the workshop.

The Editorial Board played a very important role in the success of the Sizzler. Members were Jeanna Gray, Sharon Lawrence, Annalisa Puttoff, Ruth Vest, Carolyn Dowell, Lora Rigsby, Fred Ford, Kamala Kuppler and Sponsor Mrs. Susie Brown.

Books, Magazines, Newspapers And More!

"Don't reshelve the books; put them on the red cart." Students thought these signs, posted on the ends of the library shelves, were for the purpose of having a neat room. They were really there to keep library aides busy and on their toes.

Mrs. Joyce Ashbrook supervised the junior high library while the student library aides attended the many multitudinous tasks and painstaking work necessary to run our libraries. Students earned school credit for their library assistance and at the same time learned more about libraries. Mrs. Ashbrook depended a great deal on the aides to be available at the check-out desk, to shelve and card books, and to keep the library neat.

Library aids came from study halls and worked on a rotating base every nine weeks. Thanks to all the hard work of the librarian and aides, the library was well organized and efficiently run, enabling students to find what they needed without trouble.

Creativity Reflects Views

Mrs. Virgie Dowell, sponsor, explains how the Reflections, junior high literary magazine, will be published this year. Behind her are editors Terrie Barnes and Jennifer Trout.

Widowmaker

You old gray ominous widowmaker
Tower against naked blue sky
Standing past your years,
Your branches creep, creak, crack
In gentlest wind.
And yet from your dead boughs
Majestic wind hovering brown birds
Swoop and glide
Across glassy sky,
Their red tails glistening ...
As my joy-filled being
Marvels at the juxtaposition.
Miss Brenda Taulman

"Reflections", a publication of the junior high, was a literary magazine published for and by the seventh and eighth grade. Terrie Barnes and Jennifer Trout were the editors. Other members of the staff were Tia Edwards, Wendi Harris, Missy Sproessigg, Angi Paxton, Missy Consley, Debbie Morrison, Lisa Fussnecker, Melissa McNear, Greg Kuppler. Mrs. Virgie Dowell, junior high English teacher, took on the responsibility of being their sponsor.

The magazine consisted of various types of poetry, short stories and drawings. Many students contributed to the magazine. Teachers even wrote some creative pieces. Mr. Jim White offered his talent to write a page entitled, "Reflections of a History Teacher." Thanks to the special writing skill of many students, the literary magazine of 1981 turned out to be one of the best.

JHS Actively Involved

The Southwestern Junior High is a very active educational institution. During the school year the students experienced many exciting and special days. Included were Halloween celebrations, dress-up day, hat day, awards banquets, special assemblies, and the year ended with the Eighth Grade Party.

Tomorrow's Einsteins

Being in Science Club this year took a great deal of hard work and concentration, but there was a lot of fun, too.

All members were required to do projects which were put on display and competed for first, second, and third places in a local Science Fair. With a model of a heart which consisted of a maze tracing the flow of blood through the heart, Carolyn Dowell and Jeanna Gray won first place.

The fun part of being in the Science Club was that the members got to go to the Louisville Museum of History and Science. Stephanie Bruther found the Foucault Pendulum, which stands five stories high, fascinating. Her favorite display was of the outer space exhibit which focused on the Apollo missions. One of the other exhibits, a miniature circus, impressed the students. It included old fashioned circus wagons and tents with small animals and people. There were also two ten feet tall polar bears and a three thousand, four hundred year old Egyptian mummy.

The officers of the Science Club were: president, Jeanna Gray, vice-president, Stephanie Bruther, secretary, Carolyn Dowell, and treasurer, Dave Todd. Mr. Jim Singer sponsored the club this year.

S.C. Lights Up Our Lives

Being enthusiastic, the student council planned many special days for the seventh and the eighth grade students this year. One of the many activities was a Hat and Shades Day when everyone wore a hat and a pair of sunglasses. Having an ear for music, the student council held a dance at Christmas time to celebrate the end of the second nine weeks. They sponsored a Dress-Up Day and a Hobo Day where they dressed up in their best, then dressed down in their worst. Field day this year, sponsored by the student council was cancelled because of rain. President of the 1980-81 student council was Stephanie Bruther. The vice-president and secretary were Bobby Moore and Sonja Arbuckle. Treasurer this year was Carolyn Dowell. Mr. Tom Patterson was the sponsor of the student council and helped to make the students' ideas possible.

Future Marching Rebels

Mrs. Sara Springstun was extremely proud of her junior high band this year. They worked long, hard hours to perfect the music played in the two concerts. Some of the songs played in their last concert were Mozart Festival, The Electric Sandbox, Lullay and Triumphal Exit.

Many of the members at the end of the year moved up to the high school band. They were Sonja Arbuckle, Lonnie Baker, Kristi Bare, Jeff Barnett, Matt Bell, Lori Bennett, Tony Brawner, Chris Bruce, Amy Cheatham, Dawn Duke, Tia Edwards, Richard Heimback, Jenny Horine, Kevin Humphrey, Kelly Jones, Charles Kloss, Teresa Kuntz, Greg Kuppler, Lisa Morgan, Steve Morrill, Sonda Niccum, Tammy Shelley, Becky Smith, Tom Surret, and Richard Webb. These students will be giving a lot of time and dedication to the high school band this summer and in the future.

Sunshine And Smiles

Smiles were on the faces of members in the Southwestern Junior High Choir. Under the direction of Mrs. Cathy Ellis, the choir learned how to read and appreciate music and what intonation is, thus improving the choir's ability by leaps and bounds. Smiles and Sunshine, Christmas, and Spring were the concerts in which this year's choir participated. Some of the songs that were sung in their last concert were Singin' A New Song, It's Time to Fly Away, A Song For You, Saturday Morning Fever, and Those Good Old Days. The choir did a fine job at all the concerts and they had a choir of which they could be proud.

In January twelve soloists and three ensembles went to the Indiana State Music Associate Solo and Ensemble Contest. The students did a very good job and all received either a superior or an excellent rating. The soloists receiving a superior were Angie Paxton, Missy Sproessig, Jeanna Gray, Mary Scudder, Susan Orr, Angie Vest and Thomas Beckman. Those soloist receiving an excellent rating were Laura Hindson, Rhonda Powell, Missy Edwards and Robbie Tullis. All of the ensembles were given an excellent rating.

Seventh Grade Adds Spirit To JHS

When the Class of '86 moved to the junior high, most of the students did not know what to expect, but they soon found out.

Fall brought cross country, and several seventh graders proved their worth. Although the seventh grade boys' basketball team was not always victorious, the girls burned the hardwoods. Wrestling engaged several seventh graders. Volleyball was a new sport for the girls as was girls' track. Boys' track was aided by quite a few fellows.

A seventh grader was secretary of the JHS Student Council. The Sizzler staff included members of the class. Seventh grade cheerleaders were most talented.

Many class members took advantage of the new Art Class, and some tried Industrial Arts and Home Economics for the first time. High school band included two talented seventh graders, and many more were a part of the junior high band and choir.

Before they knew it, the school year was over, and suddenly those green seventh graders were to become the mature eighth graders of next year.

More With Moore . . .

Rosemary Cloyd, Jean Feider, Larry Moore, and Brenda Taulman anxiously await the arrival of the junior high students for the 1981 year.

Junior high is a time when there are few pressures of growing up. It is a time to have fun and be a crazy kid but some degree of order and discipline is needed. This is where Mr. Larry Moore enters the stage. What does the Assistant Principal do in the junior high school? Ask Mr. Moore and he will give you a number of jobs he takes care of at Southwestern. He is their main man. Sometimes things get out of hand so someone has to take over. As assistant principal he handles discipline with respect for the students and the school. He is greatly needed and appreciated at Southwestern Junior High School.

Mrs. Jean Feider, junior high secretary, is the mother-like figure in the junior high. She has been working here for sixteen years. Besides keeping permanent records, enrolling students, taking messages, typing, running off tests, and listening to the students, she always has time to give a friendly smile. Sometimes these things are taken for granted, but everyone realizes that Southwestern Junior High School would not be the same without her.

In-school suspension supervisor, Miss Brenda Taulman graduated from the University of Evansville in 1977. She received a BA in Secondary Education. Her job at Southwestern is to keep all records of junior and senior high attendance and sponsor the junior high cheerleaders.

Mrs. Rosemary Cloyd, study hall supervisor, adds spirit and enthusiasm to the junior high. Besides her supervision in study hall she enjoys helping the cheerleading squads. In the March Spring Fling she oversaw the high school squads in their money-making projects. The Southwestern student body will never look upon her as just another face in the crowd.

“Junior Rah-Rah Rooters”

This year's Junior Rah-Rah Rooters created spirit and enthusiasm at all games, pep sessions, and supported the upper class cheerleaders. Much time and practice went into boosting the pep at Southwestern Junior High. The girls sold duffle bags and raffled off ice cream to raise money.

In July, the eighth grade squad attended the National Cheerleading Association Camp held at the University of Kentucky. They received four excellent ribbons and a superstar squad award. The seventh grade visited Anderson college for their camp. They received one superior and one good ribbon. Everyone worked extremely hard and accomplished a lot.

The squads were under the new supervision of Miss Brenda Taulman. She supported her girls by offering constructive criticism and helped in raising money. The SWJH student body should be very proud of their cheerleaders.

Over The Hills And Through The Woods

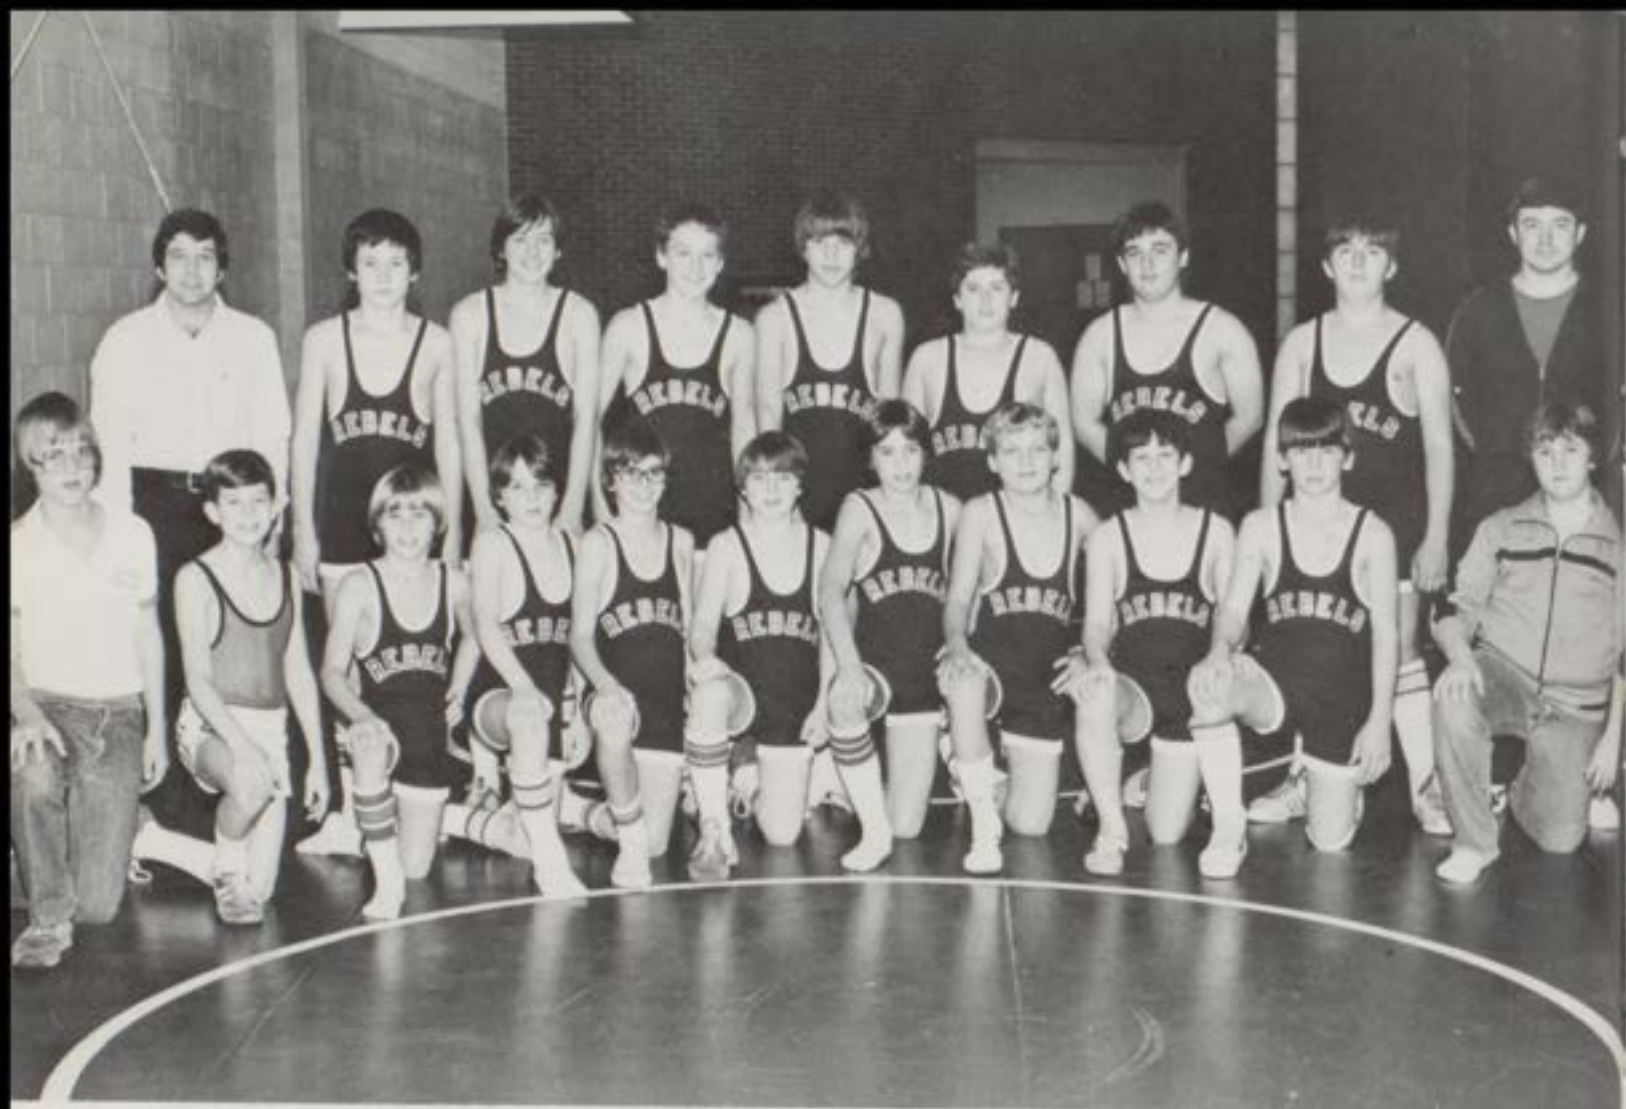

The 1980 junior high cross country team had an excellent season. They finished a strong first place in the county meet. The junior high team was lead by eighth grader Bob Moore and seventh grader Steve Morrill.

The team practiced each day after school on the cross country course, averaging about three miles a day. On some days the team ran a series of intervals on the course. The eighth graders will move up to the high school ranks next year, and hopefully the seventh graders will continue running for the junior high.

Pinned In Victory

Wrestling this year took a lot of hard work and dedication which our team had. The wrestlers had eight matches and two tournaments. At the Seymour Invitational Eddie Webster won a first place trophy at the 105 pound level. The team placed seventh of eight schools.

The team had 13 regular members and one manager throughout the season. The record for individual matches wrestled were 26 wins and 43 losses which is approximately a 38 percent winning record.

Mr. Larry Moore, wrestling coach, was very enthusiastic toward the wrestling team at Southwestern. He was a top-notch wrestling coach at Madison and started the program here.

Volleyball takes great concentration as eighth grader Stephanie Bruther shows us as she returns a volley during a match.

This year the junior high volleyball team was under the direction of a new and inexperienced coach. Mrs. Paula Carter hardly knew what the words bump, set, and spike meant, but by the time to start the season, she had her team ready to win.

The eighth grade team did not have a winning season; however, on several occasions when they played, the games ended with very close scores. The seventh grade ended the season with a two and six record. Both teams exhibited outstanding qualities, and the players were hard workers. The future of volleyball at Southwestern looks bright.

Beginners' Luck

This is the second year for girls' seventh grade basketball; however, this was the first year for this select group of girls. When they started practice, they were not very good as a team. After a lot of hard work and determination, they became a better team. They mastered the fundamentals of the game very quickly because of their eagerness to win. When the first game rolled around, they looked as if they had been playing together for a long time. They went through the season with only one defeat in eight games. They defeated North Vernon, Switzerland County and Shawe twice and South Ripley once. Their only loss was to arch-rival Madison who won by only two points: SW shot at the buzzer and the ball rimmed off the front of the rim.

Joanna McLemore was the team's leading scorer. She averaged just over twenty points a game with her season high being twenty-five points against Madison. Scoring was not the only reason this team had a successful season. Cheryl Schiporst and Amy Cheatham did an excellent job of rebounding. Charlene Summer, Rebecca Caine and Teresa Kuntz added tremendously with their sticky defense. The girls not mentioned helped out just as much as the girls who played a lot. If it were not for them playing hard everyday in practice, they would not have won a single game.

This was also the first year for Coach Tim Brawner. He credited the winning season to the hard work of the girls and the coach's know how. He said that as a coach it was probably beginner's luck. Coach Brawner is expecting big things from this group of girls, especially in the years to come. With a lot of hard work, other teams will find that they will need a sack lunch before they defeat the Lady Rebels.

Guaranteed To Be Winners

Talented was not quite the word for this year's girls' eight grade basketball team, but they showed much spunk. With a considerable number of returning players and Coach Susan Brown, together they worked well. Coach Brown showed the girls the basic fundamentals of basketball and she went into some complex offense and defensive plays.

One of the most outstanding numbers of the team was Susan Abel, the backbone of the team. She was the main playmaker and was the leading scorer with a 16 point average. Leading the Lady Rebels in assists was Roxann Flint, and pulling down the most rebounds was Rhonda Powell.

At the annual winter sports banquet each girl received a certificate for her participation in the sport of basketball.

On one occasion the team put everything it had together to win its last home game as eight graders; it defeated Shawe by a score of 21-14. With a slight improvement from last year, the season record was 4-4. The girls played with the determination to be winners, never letting their heads hang low. They should turn into good high school players.

"True Grit"

A young and inexperienced group of boys were what formed the seventh grade basketball team. While they were young and inexperienced they were a group who had a great amount of the "glue" that could bind a group of boys into a quality team.

This year marked the return of Tom Patterson to junior high coaching after a short absence. While his team only had a 1-7 record, they were a tough team both physically and more importantly mentally.

The offense was spearheaded by high scorer Steve Morrill. Morrill, who began the season as a sub, quickly came on to become the main part of Patterson's offensive team.

Defense was a direct reflection of the team's personality. They formed a scrappy and aggressive attack. While their season marks were not always impressive, the "never say die" attitude they possessed gave these young boys great character.

Coach Tom Patterson was aided by two young men as managers, Don Bowles and Robert Whisman; both of these men should also be commended for a good job they did throughout the season.

These players began the season as young and inexperienced boys. After a hard season, they gained the maturity that will help them to be first rate next season.

Upper right: Jeff Barnett throws up a jump shot over several defenders to score in the team's only regular season victory.

Lower Left: The seventh grade basketball team consists of: Front: Robbie Tullis, Jerry Wheeler, Tony Brawner, Tony Monroe, Robbie Miller, Scott Ison, Steve Morrill, Troy Miller and Sonny Clair. Back: Duane Ralston, Curt Hilleary, Jeff Barnett, Montane Liler, Terry Swefford, Mike Chatham, David Blume, Eric Gray, Jason Millican, and managers Robert Whisman and Don Bowles.

Lower right: The seventh grade team was a hustling and battling one. Robbie Miller displays these traits as he gets a shot off in a crowded lane.

Search For Success

"Rockman" Bobby Moore goes strong for a lay-up.

Outside shooting helped in the eighth grade scoring drives! Peter Jackson works on his shooting form.

The eighth grade basketball team was well mixed with a combination of height, speed, and hustle. As all of Southwestern teams the eighth grade boys were hard defensive players and strived to perfect a sharp, crisp offense. Although their record was 3-9, they added excitement and victory to Southwestern's gym.

From the opening tip-off of the season, players such as Danny Webb, Bobby Moore, and David Todd added that extra dimension of hustle that increased the excitement of their games.

Defense was, as always, a key part to the Rebel attack; Ron Mundt and Danny Lee were the power big men, while Kevin Todd and Bobby Moore added pressure on the perimeter.

The offense used their big men to add an extra angle to an already tough and solid offensive machine. With key passing into Ron Mundt and Danny Lee, along with the driving ability of Danny Webb and the outside shooting of the guards, the eighth graders formed an efficient and fierce scoring machine.

With the super talent and potential that Veteran Coach Randy Wehner had, there was never a dull moment. It was players like these on the eighth grade team this year who will continue to delight audiences at Southwestern for years to come.

Lap By Lap

The 1981 junior high track did not compete in many meets, but they faired well in the few in which they participated. Horace Lewis, a 1980 graduate of Southwestern, coached the track team this year. His strongest runner was eighth grader Bob Moore. Moore was also the best long jumper for the team. Seventh grader Terry Swafford was the leader in the field events. Swafford and Moore set school records in the specialties during the course of the year.

The team finished the season with the conference meet at South Ripley where points were scored by Bob Moore, Steve Morrill, and Terry Swafford.

The team will feel the loss of Bob Moore as he runs for the high school squad next year, however; Swafford and Morrill will be a nucules around whom the junior high team will be built.

When You're Serious About Running . . .

Rain caused a lot of problems for this year's girls' track season. Because of the weather, the team was able to compete in only two meets. Unable to win their first meet which was a triangular one with Jac-Cen-Del and South Ripley, they were able, however, to bring home several ribbons in numerous events.

At the ORVC conference meet held May 2, which was the second and last meet for the young girls' track team, they were able to make a good showing. In field events two Rebels came away with ribbons. Kim Werth threw the discus for a total of 64 feet 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches for a fifth place and Cheryl Schiphorst tied for a second in the high jump with a leap of 4 feet, 2 inches. In the running events, quite a few girls made it to the finals. In the finals of the 100 Meter Dash Melissa McCreary place fifth with a time of 14:8 seconds. Placing fifth in the 400 Relay were Lori Bennett, Stephanie Bruther, Tracy Purris and Kim Werth. Passing the baton for a second place in 800 Meter Relay were Teresa Bodem, Dawn Duke, Melissa McCreary and Cheryl Schiphorst.

On May 19, 1981, at the spring sports banquet, each girl was recognized for her participation in track. Coach Paula Carter introduced each girl and gave her a certificate for her hard effort this season.

With this being only the team's second season, and under the new coaching of Paula Carter, sixth place of six teams was not bad in the conference. The girls gave it all they had in practice and at the meets. With the continuing growth of this sport, the girls' program should flourish with enthusiasm.

Angelo We're Not!

The 1980-1981 junior high school year was made more colorful and exciting for many seventh and eighth grade students. With the addition of Ms. Joni Carlos to the teaching staff, another new class was given birth. Art class was introduced in the junior high for the first time, and without a doubt it was successful. Their activities included making kites and paper mache figures, drawing still life sketches, and brightly colored cartoons were hung on the walls of the hallway. While the class was a great deal of fun, students also learned many basic ideas that will help them in high school art classes. It was this type of class that made 1980-81 a most interesting and different year for the junior high.

The 1980-81 school year has come and gone. It brought another sixth grade class up to the ranks of the junior high and sent a senior class out into the world. Glancing back, it seemed like any other school year, but on Honors' Day when Principal Delbert King read a list of the year's activities, the student body realized what a special year it was. Fond memories of triumph, tears, and everyday life filled everyone's mind.

During the summer of 1980 at the Josten Yearbook Camp held at Hanover College, this book was conceived. Editor Joyce Hertz attended the three day workshop where she designed the outline for the 204 page production. During the week she was joined by Assistant Editor

Matt Morrill at which time they suggested their cover design to the Josten artist. Using Matt as the model, he drew the basic design for the Rebian cover and for eight division pages to follow the general theme of Rebels.

We, the Rebian staff, have tried to capture the highlights of the year with photographs and essays that will preserve Southwestern's history. For the first time we have produced a yearbook with more than two-hundred pages and with more color pictures than ever before. Though it was impossible for us to put every special happening of this year in the book, we did try to squeeze all the excitement we could within our binding.

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased in the UK (Mental Health Act 1983).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a strategy for mental health care in the UK, which includes a commitment to improve the lives of people with mental health problems.

The aim of this paper is to describe the development of a self-help manual for people with mental health problems.

The paper is organized as follows. First, a brief overview of the current state of mental health care in the UK is given.

Next, the development of the self-help manual is described, including the identification of the needs of people with mental health problems.

Then, the content of the manual is described, including the development of the manual's structure and the development of the manual's content.

Finally, the manual is evaluated, including the development of the manual's evaluation strategy and the development of the manual's evaluation results.

The paper concludes with a discussion of the implications of the manual for mental health care in the UK.
